DIRECTIONS TO CONTRIBUTORS

General. Drawings and photographs should only be included to illustrate objects which cannot easily be described in the text. Normally two half-tone plates may be included in each paper, without charge. Authors should consult recent issues of the Proceedings (Vols. XLIX ff.) to familiarize themselves with its typographical conventions. Papers should be headed with the title and the author's name and style, with the text in double-spaced typescript with a $1\frac{1}{2}$ in. left-hand margin on paper suitable for ink correction. Typescripts should bear the name and address of the person to whom proofs are to be sent, and a short version of the paper's title (less than forty-five letters and spaces in length) suitable to be printed at the top of the published pages. Twenty-five off-prints will be given free: extra copies may be obtained at the printer's current price, but must be ordered when the galley-proofs are returned. The Editor is not responsible for loss of or damage to manuscripts and illustrations.

Appendices. If they wish to avoid delay in publication authors are urged not to invite other scholars to write appendices to their papers. If this cannot be avoided, authors should not submit their paper until they have received all the appendices (and illustrations), reduced them to manageable proportions and checked all cross-references between them and the main text.

Illustrations. Illustrations, except pottery profiles which may be drawn full size, should be drawn approximately twice printed size (which must not exceed $5\frac{1}{2} \times 7$ in.). They should be on separate sheets, each bearing the author's name, short title of the paper, and plate or figure numbers on the back. Diagrams should be drawn in indian ink on plain white paper, with letters, numbers, etc., written lightly in pencil. Caption and legend should be typed on a sheet separate from the illustration and numbered to correspond. Drawings and photographs should include a scale and a statement of magnification. Photographs should be well-contrasted prints on glossy paper, and should be chosen bearing in mind the layout on the finished plate, where from one to four photographs can be arranged; preferred layout must be indicated and each figure on the plate must be designated by a, b, c, etc., with appropriate cross-references in the text.

References. Names of authors should not be underlined; titles of books, periodicals or other collective publications should be underlined for italics; the title of an article appearing in a periodical should not be underlined but should appear between single inverted commas; volume numbers should be given in Roman small capitals (twice underlined in the typescript); if required the place and date of publication should follow the title (if a book) or the volume number (if a periodical)—they should be placed in round brackets and should precede the page or plate reference. For example: J. Bromwich, Thirty Years Umbrella-poking in the Fens (Dublin, 1965), pp. 142–55, or O. U. T. Cobleigh et al. 'Excavations at the Fair-ground, near Widdecombe', West Country Classical Quarterly, vol. XII (1803), p. 155. When references are repeated at short intervals op. cit., loc. cit., ibid. may be used, but in cases of ambiguity the expanded forms Brewer, op. cit., Stewer (1805), op. cit. pl. XIX, or Gurney, loc. cit. are recommended.

Abbreviations. Vol. xv, App. XV, no. 15, pl. XV, p. 15, l. 15, n. 15—for volume, appendix, number, plate, page, line and note respectively. Abbreviated titles of Journals can be found in the World List of Scientific Publications, 3rd ed. (1952), but any self-explanatory abbreviation may be adopted: Ant., Ant. J., Arch., Arch. J., B.M.C., J.R.S., P.P.S., Proc. C.A.S. are frequently recurring examples.

Cost of corrections. The Society has found it necessary to place a limit on the margin allowed for the cost of authors' corrections and alterations to proofs. The maximum allowance will be 20% of the cost of typesetting, and any charge in excess of this will be carried out at the contributor's expense. Alterations to page proof are very costly.
