Whitworth Park: Pleasure, Play and Politics is the product of a collaborative project involving The University of Manchester, community volunteers and local school children. It was led by the Department of Archaeology and the Friends of Whitworth Park, working alongside Manchester Museum, Whitworth Art Gallery, and the Ahmed Iqbal Ullah Race Relations Resource Centre.

The Whitworth Park Community Archaeology and History Project team, led by Hannah Cobb, Melanie Giles, Siân Jones and Ken Shone, are grateful to all those who participated in the excavations and related research. This includes community volunteers, members of the Friends of Whitworth Park, Manchester Museum's Young Archaeologists' Club, Manchester Museum's Youth Board, and The University of Manchester Archaeology students. Children from the following schools participated in the project: Medlock Primary School, Heald Place Primary School, Manchester Academy, Matthew Moss School, Sale High School, Southern Cross School, Xaverian College, Aquinas College. Thanks are due to site manager, Nick Overton, and supervisors, Stephanie Duensing, Kat Fennelly and Ellon Souter. Artefacts specialists, David Barker, David Higgins and Karen Weston, worked to a tight deadline to provide invaluable information for the exhibition. Finally, special thanks to Project Assistant, Ruth Colton, for her hard work and dedication, and Suzannah Haddow, who assisted with exhibition research. Without the enthusiasm and commitment of all these people, and more, this exhibition would not be possible.

Manchester Museum is grateful to all those individuals who kindly provided images of, or loaned objects relating to, Whitworth Park, especially Bruce Anderson, Frank Collins, Steve Little, Siân Jones, Ken Shone, Manchester Libraries, and The University of Manchester. Staff at CHICC kindly provided images from the University of Manchester collection. The image of the Globe Theatre model was produced by ProQuest LLC as part of ProQuest® Historical Newspapers. www.proquest.com. Stuart Jeffrey, Glasgow School of Art, and Belle Vue Production contributed audio-visual material. Dr Michael Flynn, Centre for Atmospheric Science, School of Earth, Atmospheric and Environmental Sciences kindly prepared the meteorological information for the exhibition.
