Archaeology in London

Medieval finds from Excavations in London

KNIVES AND SCABBARDS

Jane Cowgill, Margrethe de Neergaard & Nick Griffiths

The first of an important new series dealing with finds from excavations in the capital carried out by the Department of Urban Archaeology at the Museum of London, mostly recovering material from large riverside rubbish dumps. Over 300 knives, 100 leather scabbards and 50 pairs of shears and scissors, dating from the mid 12th to the mid 15th centuries, are catalogued, discussed and illustrated. Further titles will cover shoes and pattens, textiles, dress fittings and household goods.

THE ROMAN FORUM SITE IN LONDON

Discoveries before 1985

Peter Marsden

Many archaeological investigations have been carried out on the site of the forum and basilica—the market place and town hall of Roman times. In a fresh and detailed interpretation of the finds, Peter Marsden traces the story of the discovery of the most impressive Roman civic centre in Britain—possibly one of the largest in the Empire—and relates its spectacularly rapid development to the growth of Londinium and to the granting of self-government to the city.
