

Summer 1994
Vol. 7 no. 7
£1.75

London Archaeologist

BRONZE AGE
SITE IN CARSHALTON

NEW MEDIEVAL BUILDING TECHNIQUE

CAN WREN'S CHURCHES SURVIVE?

PREHISTORY IN THE THAMES

DIARY
LETTERS
MOSAIC
COMMENTARY

History at its Best

Tudor London

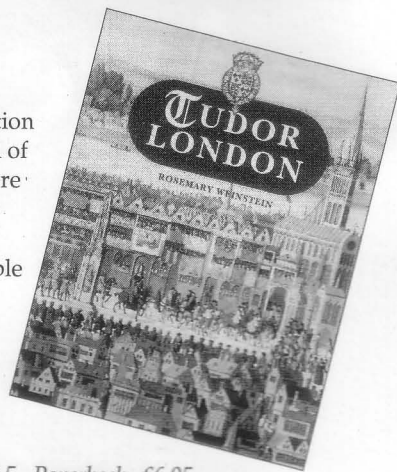

Rosemary Weinstein

The Tudor period was one of change and growth for London. The population quadrupled and the city established itself as the political and social capital of the country. Court patronage and a consumer boom meant that people were drawn to the metropolis from all over Britain and abroad. However, there were disadvantages to this growth period; many areas of the city became desperately overcrowded and rising prices and inflation made life miserable for the less well-off.

This beautifully illustrated book draws on recent archaeological finds and other evidence—including the very first maps and guides to London—to describe a dynamic period of the capital's history.

MUSEUM OF LONDON

February 1994 246x189mm 56 pages illus in colour and b/w ISBN 0 11 290495 5 Paperback £6.95

Other titles in this series

Eighteenth Century London

Nichola Johnson

"... a vibrant picture of an exuberant and sometimes chaotic, city ... The text contains a surprising amount of information, made accessible through the style of writing, and the incorporation of a generous complement of illustrations." – Context

48 pages illus in colour Paperback £5.95 ISBN 0 11 290448 3

Prehistoric London

Nick Merriman

"How splendid to find a book which, intended for the interested amateur, secondary school student or teacher needing a useful source book, contains so much more ... a wealth of very readable information ..."

– Group for Education in Museums Newsletter

50 pages illus in colour Paperback £4.95 ISBN 0 11 290447 5

Roman London

Jenny Hall and Ralph Merrifield

"... maps, diagrams, photographs and yet more drawings are revealed — all in full colour. All the maps are interesting but the topographical studies of London excel." – London Archaeologist

48 pages illus in colour Paperback £6.95 ISBN 0 11 290436 X

Saxon and Norman London

John Clark

"Using a wide range of source materials ... the author paints a lucid picture of the growth of London."

– British Archaeological news

50 pages illus in colour Paperback £3.95 ISBN 0 11 290458 0

Available from all good booksellers, HMSO Bookshops and Agents (see Yellow Pages: Booksellers).
Mail order: HMSO Publications Centre, PO Box 276, London SW8 5DT (post and packing free, cheques payable to 'HMSO Books'). Credit card orders – Tel: 071-873 9090 Fax: 071-873 8200

HMSO
Books