Coats of Arms in Berkshire Churches.

By P. S. Spokes, M.A.

The following notes on the heraldry of Berkshire Churches are intended primarily to be an accurate record and description of the coats of arms existing at the present time. Where the tinctures are not shown on the original they have been ascertained, as far as possible, from some recognised source and inserted in the description. Where some authoritative information appears to exist the name of the family bearing the coat follows the description in block capitals; where, however, there exists only evidence which leads to a probable identification being made the name appears in block capitals in italics within brackets.

Where no name is given after the blazon little or no evidence is available to the author to indicate to whom the arms were granted. Short historical and genealogical notes and tricks (for the drawing of which the author wishes to thank his wife) have in some cases been added to the descriptions which have, been arranged alphabetically by localities within the various Hundreds commencing with the northern part of the County.

The compiler of these notes, conscious of the difficulty of ensuring the possession of all the relevant information desirable, much hopes that readers having evidence on the heraldry and genealogy concerned will not hesitate to send it for publication in the Journal or communicate with the author. Each separate coat has been serially numbered for each Church in order to afford convenient identification for reference purposes.

He was Principal of Gloucester Hall, Oxford, from 1648 to 1660 having become a D.M. in 1648; being a non-conformist he was obliged to leave Oxford at the Restoration and retired to Abingdon where he practised as a doctor; he married, firstly, Susannah, daughter of William Bury of Culham and, secondly, Anna, who died in 1688 and was buried in St. Helen's Church with their daughter Ann who married Thomas Danson, sometime Fellow of Magdalen College, Oxford, who was also a well-known Presbyterian. Tobias died in 1689 and no difficulties seem to have been raised in connexion with his burial in the Church; he disclaimed at Ashmole's Visitation in 1665-6; his son John was at Oxford and became a lawyer; his son Joshua was one of the boys expelled from Roysse's School in 1671 as being sons of non-conformist parents.

East End. Altar Tomb.

John Roysse, d. 1571.

8. Gules a griffin segreant argent charged on the shoulder with a rose of the field barbed and seeded proper. ROYSSE.

He was born in 1500 and died a widower; he was a native of Abingdon and became a mercer in London where he owned free-holds; he founded the well-known school in Abingdon which bears his name in 1563 for seventy-three boys having remodelled buildings purchased from the Corporation and giving one of his London properties for endowment; he also instituted an annual sermon at St. Helen's Church at which the masters and scholars of the school were to be present and thoughtfully provided refreshment at the termination thereof. He had one son, Thomas, who was partially deprived of benefit under his will in favour of his grandson John; his only daughter married Thomas Martin, LL.D, who was one of the executors of his will. He obtained his Grant of Arms in 1563 bequeathing the Patent (which has since disappeared) to the Corporation; his portrait may be seen in Guildhall at Abingdon.

He was born at Lillingstone Dayrell, Co. Bucks, being the third son of Paul Dayrell who was Sheriff of Buckinghamshire in 1562 and 1579 and who died in 1606; his wife Alice, who died in 1650, was a grand-daughter of Richard Mayott, first Mayor of Abingdon, and by whom he had three sons and three daughters. Of the sons Paul was the eldest and was living in Oxford in 1655; Thomas, M.A., was a Fellow of All Souls College, Oxford, and died in 1654-5; and Walter, who died in 1684, was sometime of Christ Church, Oxford, and Archdeacon of Winchester. Of his daughters, Alice (d. 1684), married Charles Holloway of Oxford and Inner Temple, Counsellor at Law, and Mary (d. 1681) married firstly, John Morris, D.D., Canon of Christ Church and Professor of Hebrew in the University, who died in 1647-8, and secondly, Thomas Keyt of Great Wolford in Warwickshire. Walter lived at Lacy's Court from 1612 until his death, the estate, however, continuing in the possession of the family until about 1649; he was at Oxford and appears to have been the first Recorder of Abingdon in 1610 as well as legal adviser and auditor of Christ's Hospital, Abingdon; in 1618 he was appointed a Commissioner, with three others, to hold an inquisition concerning the property of St. Nicholas Church; he was also one of the eight Commissioners who drew up the statutes on the foundation of Pembroke College, Oxford, in 1624; he died at Gray's Inn. Of his ancestors, Henry Dayrell, temp. Henry III. and Edward I., married firstly, Johanna, daughter and co-heiress of Roger de Samford, and first-cousin to Alicia de Samford, wife of Robert de Vere, Earl of Oxford, and secondly, Alicia, daughter of Christian, who was the daughter and heiress of Alexander Hampden.

He was born in 1583 and was the last male survivor of an influential family which had resided in Abingdon since 1553; he married Jane, a member of the Blagrave family at Bulmarsh. His eldest and surviving daughter, Mary (d. 1650) married Ralph (1613-96), son and heir of Sir Edmund Verney of Claydon, Co. Bucks, in 1629; their daughter Jane died in 1626; his son John was born in 1625 just before the death of his parents and probably died in infancy. Both he and his wife died, probably of plague, on the same day in 1625. He bequeathed £2 a year to the master of the Free School which has now been converted to one Blacknall scholarship at Roysse's School; he left funds to support a Readership at St. Nicholas Church which was at one time usually held by a master of Roysse's School but which has now been transferred to St. Helen's Church; he arranged for a distribution of bread from his tomb which still takes place and left other charities which are now administered by the Governors of Christ's Hospital, Abingdon, including the bequest of £4 for four sermons a year by a preacher of the Queens College, Oxford. The site of the monastery in Abingdon wasbought by John's grandfather William (who was an original Bailiff and twice Mayor of Abingdon), and eventually passed to the Verney family by the marriage of his daughter Mary recorded above.

Many boys, who afterwards became well known, were at the School during his time, including Clement Saxton, subsequently High Sheriff of the County, and William Newcome, afterwards Archbishop of Armagh. He was a Tory in politics and it appears that he may also have been the road surveyor. An inventory of the Church plate, issued on the occasion of the robbery in 1785, includes a large silver flagon given by him and bearing his arms: "Party per pale ermine and argent the first charged with six lions' faces three two and one vert."

Anthony Forster was the fourth and youngest son of Richard Forster of Evelith in Shropshire by Mary, daughter of Sir Thomas Gresley; his brothers were Thomas (who married Frances Gifford), William and Michael. Anthony was probably born about 1510; he married, between 1530 and 1540, Anne, daughter of Rainould Williams of Burghfield in Berkshire, who was the eldest son of Sir John Williams and brother of Lord Williams of Thame. He was tenant of the Manor holding a lease from Owen, physician to Henry VIII., and it appears probable that he was at Cumnor at the time of Amy Lady Dudley's death there in 1560; later on he purchased the manor and lordship of the Hundred of Hormer. On the death of Oliver Hyde of Denchworth he became Member of Parliament for Abingdon in 1566 and again in 1570 which position he held until his death in 1572. He had five children, all of whom died during his lifetime; his widow lived until 1599, probably at Cumnor. He left the Manor to Robert, Earl of Leicester, his patron.

Elected a Fellow of All Souls College, he became B.D. in 1755 and D.D. in 1759; he was elected a Proctor in 1756 and became Keeper of the Archives in the University in 1777. He was an antiquary of repute and his writings included "A Complete Vindication of the Mallard of All Souls College," published in 1750, which concerned the traditional mallard found in a drain when the foundations of the College were made. He was Vicar of Cumnor from 1755 until his death and he also held the Rectory of Frilsham in Berkshire; he left £100, the interest to provide Bibles and Prayer Books for the poor of the Parish.

Chancel. North Wall. Mural Marble.

Mary, daughter of Sir Thomas Throgmorton, wife first of Sir Thomas Baskerville and afterwards of Sir James Scudamore, d. 1632; Hannibal Baskerville, her son, d. 1668, aged about 72.

1. Argent a chevron gules (azure) between three hurts (torteaux). BASKERVILLE.

Hannibal was the son of Sir Thomas Baskerville of Goodrest, Co. Warwick, and was born c. 1597 at St. Vallery in Picardy where his father died when Hannibal was nine weeks old; he was a student of Brazenose College, Oxford, and appears to have been a somewhat eccentric and melancholy man but of charitable disposition; he was accustomed to give refuge to wanderers in a barn on his estate at Bayworth and was once indicted at Abingdon for harbouring beggars. He died at Bayworth having married Mary, daughter of Captain Nicholas Baskerville, second brother of Sir Thomas Baskerville, by whom he had seven sons and two daughters; his eldest son, Thomas, was Lord of the Manor of Sunningwell in 1680 and died in 1700. Hannibal's name appears in Ashmole's Visitation of Berkshire in 1665 as one summoned to appear. The estate passed to Sir John Stonehouse of Radley when the last surviving Baskerville, grandson of Hannibal, died in 1720.
