Ruscombe [Richard Aldworth]

MS. Ashmole, ] 850, 241

[ Bodl. Libr.

He was the last member of the Chislett family to be buried in the church but it is doubtful if the ledger stone covers the actual spot for it may have been moved during the restoration of the church in 1853 or 1868. The first mention of the family found is that of Alexander Cheslake who paid subsidy in Sandhurst in 1546 and whose will was proved in 1551; the family held College Farm in Sandhurst in 1613. It seems probable that this William Chislett was deputy auditor of the court of exchequer in 1667 and later the collector of usuary notes in the counties of Leicester Worcester and Stafford; the parish register records his baptism in 1620. The register fee of 65. 8d. was received by the churchwardens for breaking the ground in the church for his burial. [Papw., Ord., 368; Kempthorne, G. A., Berks. Arch. Journ., xxi, 59: xxii, 29, 118].

He was the fourth child and eldest son of William Scott (d. 1776), a coal-shipper of Newcastle on Tyne by his second wife Jane (d. 1800), daughter of Henry Atkinson, a local tradesman. He was born at Heworth, Co. Durham and was educated at Newcastle grammar school and Corpus Christi College, Oxford, where he matriculated in 1761; he became a Fellow of University College in 1765 and was Camden reader in ancient history, 1773-85; he went to London in 1777 and was called to the bar in 1780. A friend of Dr. Johnson, he was of short stature, "fair haired, corpulent in his later years, of benign expression of face and though slovenly in dress, very courteous and polished in manner." After holding various legal appointments he was, in 1798, appointed judge of the high court of admiralty and sworn of the privy council; he represented the University of Oxford in parliament from 1801 until the coronation of George IV in 1821 when he was elevated to the peerage as Baron Stowell of Stowell Park, Co. Glouc.; he resigned his various offices in 1828 on account of old age and lived until his death in 1836 mainly at Earley Court, Co. Berks., with his son-in-law and daughter, Lord and Lady Sidmouth. He was a F.S.A. and F.R.S. He married firstly in 1781 Anna Maria (d. 1809), eldest daughter and coheir of John Bagnall of Earley Court by whom he had issue four children for whom William (d.v.p.unm., 1835) and Marianne (who married Lord Sidmouth) survived; through his first wife he came into possession of Earley Court. He married secondly, in 1813, Louisa Catherine (d.s.p. 1817), youngest daughter and coheir of Admiral, Ist Earl Howe, and widow of John, ist Marquess of Sligo. "Scott was parsimonius and convivial, Lady Sligo domestic and open-handed. They lived unhappily....." He left a fortune of nearly f230,000 besides estates producing f12,000 per annum. His eldest brother was John, 1st Earl of Eldon, the Lord Chancellor. [Burke, Gen. Arm.; D.N.B.; G.E.C., Compl. Peer., vii (1896), 258].

36. Below: on a lozenge: PALMER.

They were the children of Richard Palmer (1765-1806) by his wife Jane (d. 1812), eldest daughter of Oldfield Bowles of North Aston, Oxon. Richard purchased the manor of Sonning and Holme Park in Sonning from Sir Thomas Rich in 1795 and the old house being demolished he built a new one; the family also acquired the fee of the parsonage and rectory by Act of Parliament in 1773. Susanna-Caroline his fourth daughter, who succeeded her brother Richard (d. 1874), left by her will proved in 1880 £5.000 to the vicar for maintaining the church fabric. A grant of arms, as here, was made to Richard Palmer of Wokingham, by Sir Edward Bysshe, Clarenceux, dated 20 February 1664. This memorial was "erected by tenants and inhabitants of Sonning of all classes in 1876." [Lysons, Mag. Brit. (1813) i, 379; V.C.H. Berks., iii, 213, 223, 225; Burke, Land. Gent.; Harl. Sir Anthony was the second son of William Barker (d. 1575; see No. 44 below) of Sonning and Fellow of Middle Temple by his wife Ann (see No. 48 below), daughter of Laurence Stoughton (Stroughton). Sir Anthony married Jane, daughter of Edward Elvington (Eldrington) of Beech Hall, Co. Essex, by whom he had issue William (d. 1675; see No. 23 above and of whom presently), Henry (d. 1633, aged 37), Nathaniel (Rector of Stoke Talmage, Oxon), Anthony (of Sonning), Laurence (d. 1618) and four daughters. Sir Anthony is found dealing with land and tenements in Sonning in 1608. William (d. 1675, aged 78), his eldest son, was J.P. and Sheriff of Berkshire and married Mary daughter and coheri of William Bridon of Ipswich as his first wife by whom he had issue Robert (d.s.p.), John (d.s.p.), four other sons who died in infancy, and four daughters; he married secondly Frances by whom he had issue William (see No. 23 above) who died of smallpox in 1694. The heirs of William (d. 1675) were his daughters Anne (who married Sir Pope Danvers, Bt., of Culworth, Co. Northampt.) and Frances (who married Richard House of Whitley, Co. Berks.). C. W. Penny (Quart. Journ. Berks. Arch. & Architect. Soc., ii (1892), 116-117) says "Besides the name William Field written upon it, I find also much more rudely scratched what appears to me to be John Dawbnie, and under it a date, 1625. There is also written below this another date, 1226, (sic) apparently by the same hand and instrument which inscribed the name of "William Field." The dress of the man and the boddice and ruff of the lady are very similar in pattern to those of Richard and Elizabeth Geale in Sandhurst Church. The date of that brass in 1608. Here, as there, the letters of the inscription are of Roman type ; but here the squares of the floor, on which the figures kneel, and the faldstool between them are drawn in perspective, as is seen in late brasses of the 17th century. There is, as Ashmole remarked when he saw it, " neither Namenor Date to give any intelligence to whom this Brass belonged." But though this is true, there is the coat of arms.....which still retains the colours with which it was originally enamelled. These are : Gules, four fusils conjoined in fess, argent ; in the middle chief, a mullet, or. Now these are the well-known arms of the family of Daubeny..... Now if I have rightly read the name which is rudely scratched between the heads of the two kneeling figures of this Wokingham brass as Iohn Dawbnie, it is far more likely that it commemorates not William Field but some member of the Dawbeny family, to whom the coat of arms undoubtedly belongs. I cannot find in Robson's British Herald that the Fields have borne the arms delineated on the brass. The only other family that I can find with the same coat is that of De Carteret. But at the date of this brass the De Carterets lived in and were almost entirely confined to the islands of Jersey and Guernsey. Still it is not, of course, impossible that the person here commemorated is a De Carteret and his wife.' The above was written, and quite rightly so, to confute the sugges-tion that the brass was of the date c. 1590. Papw., Ord., 969; Morley, H. T., Mon. Brasses of Berks. (illustration), 248.

80
