THE following is a verbatim copy of a letter written by the first Duke of Devonshire to John Bagshaw, the High Sheriff of Derbyshire:—

“Whitehall, May y<sup>e</sup> 30th, 1696.

“Sir,—I return you thanks for the account you sent me of the extraordinary concourse of poor people mett together on Tiddeswall Common occasioned by the non currency of their money, and will acquaint the Lords Justices and the Councill with your care and diligence herein. The best method I can think of to satisfye them for y<sup>e</sup> present will be bread and other necessaries untill such time as new money can be sent down, which I will cause to be done as it can be gott. In the meantime as y<sup>r</sup> most effectual means to draw down money into the countrey, I desire you to give notice to the gentlemen and others who have guineas in their possession that they will send them up hither. I will engage to procure them new money in exchange. If this be done speedily I hope it will prove a remedy sufficient to prevent the like assemblys for the future.

“I am, Sir,

“Y<sup>r</sup> humble servant,

“DEVONSHIRE.”
