WINCHESTER MUSEUMS – ARCHAEOLOGY REPORTS

From the 1970’s onwards, Winchester Museums, responsible for the investigation and curation of the archaeological heritage of the city of Winchester and its surrounding district, carried out a series of major excavations in the Winchester area. The results of these excavations, together with associated analyses and research, are being published in a series of academic reports.

The following reports have already been published:

The book reports on the evidence for prehistoric settlement in Winchester from a series of excavations carried out in the 1970s and 1980s, and includes a gazetteer of all prehistoric sites known up to 2004.

This includes as an introduction brief descriptions of the sites and their context within the changing history and archaeology of the city, followed by an examination of nearly 3,000 objects according to the manner of their use. The last part offers synthesis and discussion.

Food, craft and status in medieval Winchester – The plant and animal remains from the suburbs and defences by D Serjeantson and H Rees (eds), 2009

The companion volume to this one, much of this book is taken up with detailed reports on large groups of late Saxon and medieval faunal remains. It also includes smaller reports on molluscan and plant materials.
