[Read to the Society, 9th March 1829.]

Be it known to all men be these presents, Us, Rector, Principals, Doctores, and Professors of the University of St Andrews, under subscribing: For as much as we having formerly taken to our serious consideration the great detriment and loss this ancient seminary hath been at in times past, and doth yet sustain by the want of such proper and necessary instruments and utensils as may serve and conduce for the better, more solemn, and famous profession, teaching, and improving of natural philosophy and the Mathematical sciences, and especially for making such observations on the heavens and other bodies of this universe, (as easily may be by such helps, with the great advantage of the pure air and other accommodations of this place) whereby we may be enabled to keep correspondence with learned and inquisitive persons in solid philosophy everywhere, for the said effect: And having purposed (to be forthcoming to our own duty and the encouragement of others) to set as effectually as may be about this laudable and necessary work, for providing the aforesaid instruments of all kinds, an observatory, and all other accoutrements requisite for the improvement of the aforesaid sciences, the benefit, advantage, and delight of youth to be trained up here, the honour of the kingdom, the reputation of our benefactors, and the lustre and splendor of the University: Did therefore commissionat some of our number to make application unto all persones whom they knew to be encouragers of learning, and patrons to the professors thereof, representing unto them, That we were instantly upon the effectuating of the aforesaid designe, and to that end, to crave their affections and such other encouragements for the said work, as they please to bestow; And to report to us their diligence therein, with the names of our benefactors, To the effect this University may record them, and endeavour to make such respectful remembrances to them and their posterity, as becomes: Giving them power to do every other thing proper and requisite in the said affair. They being always answerable and accountable to us aforesaid the premises. And whereas this our laudable designe hath already met with such considerable encouragement from persons of all ranks, that we have ordered Mr James Gregory, professor of the Mathematical sciences here, to goe for London, and there to provide, so far as the money already received from our Benefactors will reach, such instruments and utensils as he, with advice of other skilful persons, shall judge most necessary and usefull for the above mentioned designe: Like as be these presents we the under subscribers all with one consent constitute the said Mr James our factor for the effect foresaid, Giving and granting him our full power and ample commission for transacting and buying the forsd. instruments in so far as the money forsd. will extend, or as he shall be further furnished by us upon what is to come in upon our letters and precepts for that effect: Obliging ourselves to ratifee and approve what the sd. Mr James shall doe in this our commission, or any other commission directed to him by us during his residence there, and to acquite and relieve him of all prejudice he may incur and sustain in execution of this our commission, or any other commission sent by us to him during his residence there: And to take notice of the fabrick and forme of the most competent observatorye, that ours here intended may be builded with all its advantages: And also, considering the intended work to be of such moment and expense that we are not able to accomplish it with the contributions of these only who have already listed themselves encouragers of it: Therefore We also by these presents do nominat and constitute the sd. Mr James Gregory our factor and special mandator for making application unto all whom he knows to be favourers of learning, for their concurrence unto the advancement of the forsd. work, with full power to do every thing proper and requisite in this affair, as others formerly employed therein have been impowered by us to do, He being in like manner accountable to us anent the premisses.
