

Two late medieval tithe-lists from St Margaret's, Southwark

GRAHAM DAWSON

This article publishes two lists of tithe payers for the parish of St Margaret's, Southwark for 1484 and 1503, which are the only known examples of such lists. Not only do they throw new light on the relatively unstudied question of tithes in an urban community in the Middle Ages, but also on various aspects of late medieval Southwark such as its demography and the turnover of its population.

Introduction

In the Middle Ages Southwark was divided into five parishes – St Olave's, St Mary Magdalen, St Margaret's, St Thomas's Hospital and St George's – and also five manors, which were later known as the Great Liberty, the Guildable, the King's Liberty, the Clink, and Paris Garden and four of these were also liberties, that is they lay outside the immediate jurisdiction of the sheriff. However, there was no correlation between the two; for example St Margaret's parish, with which this article is concerned, comprised all of Paris Garden and the Clink and parts of the Great Liberty and King's Liberty.<sup>1</sup>

There were two main national courts in this period: the King's Bench and the Court of Common Pleas. Both dealt with civil cases (indeed the same case could appear in both courts), but the King's Bench also dealt with criminal cases. The Common Pleas conducted much more business than the King's Bench and it is from the records of that court that these two lists come. There was a fairly limited range of types of cases heard there and cases where A sued B for a reasonable account of the time B was A's receiver of money and/or bailiff are fairly common. Usually, that is all the information they contain but sometimes, as here, they actually list the amounts B was supposed to have collected and from whom. These two are the longest lists I have come across relating to Southwark and their length is certainly unusual.

The records of these two courts are also the main source of information about the people listed contained in the notes, but there were other courts that affected residents of Southwark. All the manors had courts of their own but only Paris Garden, the Clink and the Great Liberty have surviving records for this period and these are very incomplete. There were other national courts of which the Court of Chancery was the most important; for Southwark there was also the court of the Marshalsea of the Household, which had jurisdiction for 6 miles round the person of the king, so when he was resident at Westminster, Southwark was within that area which was called the verge and the Marshalsea court often sat in Southwark, which also contained its prison but its records have not been searched for this article. The fact that courts are the principal source for information in the notes does give a somewhat slanted view of Southwark residents, but that is imposed by the survival or not of the records.

Tithes were payments made by parishioners to their parish church. They were made to the priest in charge, symbolised in wills by the high altar (as opposed to nave altars that had their own priests). As a result, they do not appear in churchwardens' accounts, of which a number survive from the later Middle Ages including some for St Margaret's. These two lists survive because, although the parson of St Margaret's collected the tithe, it actually belonged to Southwark Priory who 'owned' the church and, although no internal records exist for as Great Liberty) and did not stop at the Lock; the Great Liberty was not a connected whole as on fig 2 but actually comprised two separate parts.

the Priory, they did have problems extracting the money from the parson. This resulted in lawsuits in the Court of Common Pleas, which is how these lists survived.

In Hillary 1484 the Prior of Southwark sued Richard Upton of Southwark chaplain to render a reasonable account of the time he was his receiver of money in Southwark from September 1482 to March 1483 when he received sums of money 'by the hand' of people in List 1.<sup>2</sup> Upton denied he was the Prior's receiver of money and both parties placed themselves on the country as was usual in such cases and no further proceedings are recorded.

In Hillary 1503 John Batmanson sued William Day of Southwark clerk to render a reasonable account of the time he was his receiver of money in Southwark from Annunciation 1500 to Annunciation 1502 when he received sums of money 'by hand of' the people in List 2.<sup>3</sup> Day sought licence to discuss the case with Batmanson, which was granted, and no further proceedings are recorded.

Where a name in the lists has * beside it there is an entry for that name in the notes section. Where a capital letter occurs with a number after it (eg C5, P1) these refer to plots in the author's topographical database.<sup>4</sup> There are a number of problems with compiling biographical data for such lists. There is the question of the date range; for example, only two references to William Wedowson (109 in List 2) could be found but since both were in the 1450s these probably related to another person of the same name so were ignored. Since Southwark's population tended to be transient, it was decided to restrict searches to the decade or two before and after the date of the lists, with a few exceptions. This problem of people with the same name occurs in other contexts, for example where the same name occurs in both lists or more than once in one list, and this is discussed below. There is also the problem of different spellings of the same name which is a particular problem since the searching was largely done by computer; this was partly avoided by searching on the part of the name that would not change but this produced a lot of 'noise'; except where obvious (eg Tiler/Tyler) these variations in spelling are noted. Usually people who are not specified as 'of Southwark' are not included, but inevitably there is a certain subjectivity in some of the selections.

- (no 14 below) and John Bolle, armourer (no 13 below) both of Southwark and four others for breaking his house in Southwark and stealing his property including an image of St John.<sup>23</sup>
- 10 John Croche was possibly John Crouch, a servant of Stephen Littlebaker (no 27 below), to whom Littlebaker left the lease of the Barge on Bankside (C239b) after his wife's death and a gown in his will of 1503;<sup>24</sup> he was overseer (with Littlebaker) of Richard Sherlock's will of 1499.<sup>25</sup>
- 13 Hillary 1486 John Bolle, armourer, was sued with William Kelet (no 14 below) and four others by William Hullok (no 9 above) for breaking into his property (C255 in the Clink) on 29 November 1483;<sup>26</sup> in 1474 he, an armourer, was sued with John Hunte, grocer, John Broun, ostler, Richard Bernard, ostler, John Seynt, sherman, and John Stokes, barber, all of Southwark by St Thomas's Hospital for preventing their servant distraining on a property on the east side of Borough High Street (C126) held of the hospital;<sup>27</sup> in his will John Hunt refers to Bolle occupying C126 and C127;<sup>28</sup> Bolle was a churchwarden of St Margaret's in 1476/7 and 84–6;<sup>29</sup> in Hillary 1472, as an armourer, he mainperned John Brown with William Kelet (no 14 below);<sup>30</sup> in Trinity and Michaelmas 1493 and Hillary and Easter 1494 Bolle, grocer, was sued by John Dove, with two husbandmen of Peckham, for illegally entering 7 acres of Dove's property in Peckham (Ca51?) on 4 May 1491.<sup>31</sup>
- 14 Hillary 1486 William Kelet, barber, was sued with John Bolle (see no 13 above); he was a churchwarden of St Margaret's 1476/7 and 84–6;<sup>32</sup> in Hillary 1472, as a barber, with John Bolle he mainperned John Brown (no 13 above).<sup>33</sup>
- 16 John Skinner sued Willam Bulle in 1488 (see no 41 below).
- 17 February 1478 William Carpenter was sued with William Frere (no 24 below) as parishioners of St Margaret's by John Medwall (no 36 below) who was acting as an executor of John Multon;<sup>34</sup> he held a garden (C258) in Maiden Lane on Bankside in 1503–10.<sup>35</sup>
- 18 Richard Dagnell (when spelt Dagenhale) was a churchwarden for St Margaret's 1482–4;<sup>36</sup> in 1482 (when spelt Dagnall) he was one of four wardens of St Margaret's who acquired a property near the church (C23);<sup>37</sup> he held Deadman's Place (C256) on the west side of Park Street 1503/4–29/30 when his name was spelt Danyell.<sup>38</sup>
- 19 1467x73 William Chareley complained that the Clink bailiff (Ralph Morton) had arrested and imprisoned him because he had said that Morton favoured strangers over his neighbours because of an earlier arrest for debt;<sup>39</sup> he was a churchwarden for St Margaret's 1479–82;<sup>40</sup> he paid St Margaret's rent for C245a on Bankside in 1482<sup>41</sup> and he also held the Antelope (C248) and the Vyne brewhouse (C249a), both on Bankside and owned by St Margaret's, before 1503;<sup>42</sup> in Hillary 1489, as a yeoman, he was prosecuted under the Livery Acts for having a cloak of Thomas Winkfield Esq of Southwark although not of his household or one of his officers;<sup>43</sup> in an undated Chancery suit he was sued as the 'keeper of bordehouse on waterside in the lordship of Winchester' for having a non-resident arrested in the Clink for debt against the custom

- C234 property to John Merston one of his trustees; his will shows that he lived in Bridge Street not in Southwark;<sup>283</sup> note his widow Anne sued on an obligation of 19 June 1490 when he is described as citizen and baker.<sup>284</sup>
- 104 Michaelmas 1474 and Hillary 1475 John Brygges, brewer, was accused of stealing goods, largely domestic items, at Newington with three others 23 November 1467 but the defendants claimed that they belonged to two of them (Thomas and Elizabeth Comber) and Brygges was acting as their servant.<sup>285</sup>
- 106 October 1463 John Prewes granted John Heydon a parcel of void land next to the Thames in Paris Garden (P4) but he did not take possession of it until May 1466<sup>286</sup> and October 1466 he granted it to John Nicoll;<sup>287</sup> 17 November 1467 the bishop of Winchester leased to Heydon all the lands which the bishop had recovered from the Hospitallers at the west end of Bankside (C232a) at 46s 8d pa for 99 years;<sup>288</sup> May 1469 Margaret Richardson granted him a parcel of waste next to the Dock in Paris Garden (P2) though he did not take possession of it until November;<sup>289</sup> in 1471 he was ordered to repair his door (of a sluice?) to prevent flooding, to repair Maiden Lane and a bridge and remove an obstruction in a road all in Paris Garden;<sup>290</sup> Trinity 1474 he sued John Loyne, Thomas Goldyng and William Smyth, all smiths, and John Spafford, shipwright, all of Southwark for trespass;<sup>291</sup> November 1472 – May 1474 it was reported that he had not repaired his fence in Paris Garden (P27);<sup>292</sup> May 1474 Heydon was amerced for not repairing a gate at the west end of Maiden Lane and a wharf on the east side of the old mill;<sup>293</sup> May 1477 he was ordered to remove a house he had built on the lord's land at the west end of his wall and for encroaching on the road to St George's Fields<sup>294</sup> – all these relate to his owning of the mill at the east end of Paris Garden; May 1479 he was amerced for not repairing his wharf in Paris Garden (P27);<sup>295</sup> 1496/7 the bailiff of the Clink received 46s 8d from him<sup>296</sup> though this was either anachronistic or it was his son since Heydon died in 1484 when he left his wife Margaret a tenement, probably P31, between the mill ditch and the way to the manor house in Paris Garden;<sup>297</sup> he had held a garden next to Chapelhawe in Paris Garden.<sup>298</sup>
- 107 For Thomas Rede see 112 below; Henry Reynold was granted by Joanne Davy in May 1462 a property in Paris Garden (P22).<sup>299</sup>
- 108 Michaelmas 1489 William Clerk, dyer, was sued by a London brewer on an obligation whose condition was that Clerk and his wife lived at peace with the plaintiff which they claimed they had;<sup>300</sup> July 1492 he granted a garden with a small cottage in Paris Garden (P4) next to a garden of Thomas Rede (no 107 above and 112 below) to his wife Joanne for her life, then to John Hart for his life and then to remain to St Benedict's next St Paul's wharf in the City and died shortly after.<sup>301</sup>
- 109 Thomas Sewall was the father of Nicholas Sewell who owned P11 in Paris Garden and he died before October 1490.<sup>302</sup>
- 110 See no 101 above for Brond.
- 111 See no 88 above.
- 112 May 1465 John and Joanne Machon granted Thomas and Lettice Rede a cottage and garden in Paris Garden (P4);<sup>303</sup> October 1467 Rede was amerced for planting a hedge on the lord's land next to his garden;<sup>304</sup> 10 April 1485 Ralph Crawford granted him

- as citizen and dyer with three others a cottage on Bankside called the Crane (C246) and another messuage (C244)<sup>305</sup> and 10 May 1494 the other three released them to Reed;<sup>306</sup> Reed died before May 1494 when his widow granted the Bankside properties to (another) Thomas Reed<sup>307</sup> who kept them until 1501 when he sold them to Littlebaker (nos 27 and 77 above);<sup>308</sup> when Lettice died in 1497 the Paris Garden property went to Thomas's two daughters although Lettice had granted it to William Snowbyldaye,<sup>309</sup> in 1503/4 a property along the south side of Park Street on Bankside (C252) was held by John Russell and someone called Rede (no Christian name given)<sup>310</sup> though this was probably anachronistic; in his will of 1509 the later Thomas Rede left his lands in Southwark to his wife Christine and his son Thomas was not to trouble her<sup>311</sup> and this was mainly C252.
- 113 November 1479 John Tutsham, citizen and draper, and Matilda his wife bought a cottage and garden in Paris Garden (P35) from Richard Moreton;<sup>312</sup> June 1494 they sold it to Thomas Ayloff and William his son.<sup>313</sup>
- 117 Michaelmas 1481 John Middleton sued Thomas and Alice Palmer, brewer of Southwark, and two yeomen of Newington for trespass;<sup>314</sup> Easter 1482 he sued William Fox, yeoman of Southwark, and Katherine his wife for trespass;<sup>315</sup> in a Chancery case of 1475x8 or 1483x5, as a groom of the King's Chamber, he claimed that he rented a house with ground in Paris Garden (P25) from Joanne Machon, widow, at 40s pa and he spent much money in repairing it which she said she would allow him against his rent but she reneged on it and was suing him for the rent in City though that was not the appropriate court.<sup>316</sup>
- 118 1478/9–97/8 (but not in 1476/7) Edward Hunt paid 8s (including an increment of 16d) rent for a garden on Bankside.<sup>317</sup>
- 122 October 1484 it was reported that Joanne Austen had died who held a parcel of vacant land in Paris Garden (P27) and that her son John was her heir but he was only 13 and his wardship and marriage were granted to John Bromehall but John died between October 1489 and June 1490,<sup>318</sup> yet his brother, William, was 21 in 1491 (he would have been 14 in 1484 so older than John – ultimogeniture).<sup>319</sup>
- 123 October 1466 John Heydon (no 106 above) granted John Nicholl vacant land in Upper Ground, Paris Garden (P4);<sup>320</sup> May 1484 Nicholl held three gardens in Paris Garden when he died and they escheated to the lord because he had no heirs.<sup>321</sup>
- 124 In 1463 John Machon lost all the tenements he held in Paris Garden because he had not paid the rent<sup>322</sup> but a garden with le Sportinghouse on it (P25) was restored to him in May 1464;<sup>323</sup> in Easter 1472 there was a reference to a messuage called Mathous messuage which had been owned by John Machon of London butcher but the defendant said he only held it at will from Hugh Wythe.<sup>324</sup>
- 126 Elen Cumber was possibly the widow of John Cumbyr, bladesmith of Southwark, who was sued in Easter and Trinity 1469 by a saddler for the return of goods worth 4 marks.<sup>325</sup>
- 127 Easter 1492 and Trinity 1493 Robert Pynkney, yeoman, was sued by Thomas Hobson for trespass.<sup>326</sup>

Discussion

WERE THEY LISTS OF TITHE PAYERS?

With List 1 there is no problem; Southwark Priory 'owned' St Margaret's church and appointed Richard Upton as its parson and he served there for 6 months after which he sued the Priory for suing him for debt although he claimed he had done all that was in the agreement on his appointment; the evidence for this is his bill of complaint<sup>703</sup> which is dated some time between 1479 and 1483 and, from the evidence of this case, his tenure must be the period 29 September 1482 to 25 March 1483.

List 2 is more problematic because the status of Batmanson is unknown. However, William Day was a clerk, that is a member of the clergy, and since he witnessed the will of a parishioner of St Margaret's in 1499<sup>704</sup> he must also be one of the clergy of St Margaret's. Batmanson also sued a Robert Hone, clerk, for an account in Michaelmas term 1503, though unfortunately without any details<sup>705</sup> and he is almost certainly the Robert Hoon who was the parish priest of St Margaret's church at some time in the reign of Henry VII<sup>706</sup> so List 2 must also be a list of tithepayers for St Margaret's parish. Batmanson was a feoffee for James Tyrrel in 1501 for a property in Bermondsey<sup>707</sup> where he is described as a clerk so it is possible that he was a canon of Southwark Priory and was acting as their agent.

POPULATION

The striking feature of these two lists is that, although they are only nineteen years apart, the second has 50% more names than the first. This shows that in the last two decades of the 15th century Southwark was rapidly expanding in population. It has already been suggested that the populated area was expanding in this period,<sup>708</sup> but this suggests the expansion was much more rapid.

Another striking feature is that, despite their nearness in time, very few of the names occur in both lists, eleven in all; this is only 8% of List 1 and just over 5% of List 2, which suggests a 90% turnover in population in fifteen years. There is no doubt that Southwark's population in the Middle Ages was very transient, but this figure seems incredibly high and raises some questions about the lists. However, there is other evidence that supports this rate of turnover; for example, the 24 tenements at the north-east end of Bermondsey Street that belonged to Magdalen College had a 100% turnover of tenants between 1456 and the mid-1480s. These, however, were held at will so were likely to be more transient.

WHO PAID TITHE?

Tithe was, originally, a tenth of the produce of the land, which the church received for its maintenance, called praedial tithe. Although this could work in an agricultural settlement, it clearly could not be applied in urban areas so they had to pay 'personal tithe' on such things as rents or wages.<sup>709</sup> Little<sup>710</sup> says that personal tithe should have been paid in the parish in which the payer lived, but this is not universal here since Richard Brand/Brond clearly lived in the City; he also says that personal tithes were paid in kind (ie bakers paid in bread etc) but there is no trace of this here. What is clearly lacking are members of the upper echelons, apart from Lord Feres and perhaps Margaret Brandon! Conspicuous by his absence is the bishop of Winchester yet he certainly paid tithe of 8s 8d because it is entered on the Pipe Roll.<sup>711</sup> However, these were praedial tithes and may have been collected separately from personal tithes (in the Valor entry for St George's the praedial tithes are listed separately from what are presumably the personal tithes). The same applies to the Hospitallers for Paris Garden. There were also houses of the ecclesiastical and lay nobility in St Margaret's parish,<sup>712</sup> but none figure in these lists either, although in some cases the tithes may have been paid by their tenants (no 17 in List 2 for example for Hyde Abbey). It is also noticeable that a large number of parishioners of St Margaret's in the period c 1460–1520 who left wills do not occur either although nearly all left money in their wills to the high altar of St Margaret's 'for tithes forgotten or negligently withholden' and this applies as much to those in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury<sup>713</sup> as in the Archdeaconry Court of Surrey.<sup>714</sup> This clause was obviously provided by the scrivener or whoever wrote the will rather than by the will maker, but it does imply that they felt they had some responsibility for paying tithes which they had not fully discharged; that might suggest that the lists are not complete or that the tithe was paid at the lowest level, that is by the person who lived in the property. This cannot, however, be entirely so since those people who occur more than once in one list must be paying for property they did not live in, for example Stephen Littlebaker, but the entry for the Cross Keys (no 211 in List 2) clearly indicates that in some cases responsibility rested with the occupier rather than the owner.

WHO RECEIVED THE TITHE?

Clearly, in 1484 the tithe went to Southwark Priory although in the later case to Batmanson, but who was he? He must have been acting as an agent for the Priory and it would seem likely that the Priory had farmed out the tithe to Batmanson, although he may have been a canon of the Priory acting as its agent and had to extract the tithe from the priest at St Margaret's and since he had to sue two of them for it, it was obviously not at all easy. Of the four other parishes in medieval Southwark the procedure in two is unknown, but with the other two the ecclesiastical body that owned them had no connection with the tithe but received an annual rent from the priest;<sup>715</sup> since the tithes at St George's produced £19 13s 4d,<sup>716</sup> this was a very good bargain for the priest.

WOMEN TITHEPAYERS

There are, perhaps, a surprising number of women in these lists since in medieval Southwark women rarely appear in the records on their own except as widows and occasionally as spinsters. Here twelve in List 1 are female (8½%), while in List 2 there are 27 (12½%). However, although these figures are not dissimilar the distributions are quite different. In List 1 all the women occur at the end of the list (after no 124) while in List 2 they are distributed throughout the list although there is a concentration towards the end of the list after no 194. Assuming the lists are arranged topographically (see below) there is a temptation to identify these women as 'madames' running the brothels on Bankside and certainly Margaret Curson (no 201 in List 2) was such and in the subsidy roll for 1522–4,<sup>717</sup> ten of the twelve people listed under the title 'Bawds of the Banke' are women but this is hardly likely to apply to Margaret Brandon although she occurs in the same area (no 130 in List 1). Although Bankside was and still is notorious for its brothels it is a common misconception that they do not occur elsewhere in Southwark, but it would be very rash to assume that the other women listed were involved in this occupation and it is difficult to explain the difference between the two lists especially since we know so little about these women. Only with Joanne Cowper (no 77 in List 2) do we know her status, she was a widow, although no 98 was presumably a spinster unless her surname was inherited. Margaret, daughter of William Brandon, is an interesting case; she was presumably single in 1484 but she later married Gregory Lovell who was a member of a Norfolk family who owned a lot of land in Southwark but they do not seem to have lived there. Her father had been in Southwark since at least 1458 and for many years was marshal of the Marshalsea prison and had relations with the Lovells, which did not always seem friendly. As the daughter of a well-to-do family one would expect her to live at home until she married, and not on her own, in the rather unsavoury area of Bankside.

RATES OF TITHE

In the Valor it is stated that tithes in St George's Southwark, Bermondsey, Rotherhithe and Lambeth were collected at the rate of 8d in the noble; since a noble is 6s 8d this is a tenth (the original meaning of the word tithe). In List 2, 151 of 206 amounts given (four were not extant in the original) were either 1s 4d or multiples thereof (ie 2 x 8d since 2 years are involved) and only twelve are not multiples of 8d or 4d, which suggests strongly that the rate in St Margaret's in 1503 was also 8d in the noble (this information for St Margaret's is not given in the Valor). However, there is no such clear-cut evidence in List 1. It is true that 57 of the 139 entries are a multiple of 4d (since only 6 months is involved) but 66 could be seen as multiples of 5d so there is, again, a clear difference between the two lists. The total income from List 1 was £25 2s which would be £50 4s for a year while List 2 only comes to a little over £72 4d which would be £36 2d for the year. A possible explanation for this could be that some tithes were paid annually and some quarterly or half-yearly and since the half-year with which List 1 is concerned included Michaelmas, when yearly payments would most likely to be made, they might have been included in List 1. In the Valor the rectory of St Margaret's is said to be valued at £42, but this includes other income besides tithes which are unquantified, although in reference to List 2 this does not seem to be a great underestimate. Beside the non-tithe payments, one has to add in an increase in the tithes caused by any increase in the number of tithe payers between 1500 and 1534, although it is interesting that the increase in the number of tithe payers in List 2 has not increased the total amount.

Since most of the names in List 2 were paying at 8d in the noble and assuming they were based on rents, then it is possible to work out what these rents were (or indeed whatever issue they were based on). Thus the lowest amount would have been 1s 8d and the largest £10; oddly the two paying the largest amount do not stand out as obviously wealthy; nothing is known about Pykemonger, whose Christian name is not given; the other, John Barbour, appears three times on the list but whether this represents one person or more is not clear although the fact that one is described in the list as butcher might suggest that the other two belong to one, but different, person; if so the amount on which paid tithes would be £11 pa. There does not seem to be any relation between the amount paid and the amount of information about the individual as might have been expected.

TOPOGRAPHY

It was hoped that the lists would be arranged topographically, which would allow those listed to be located. There is, indeed, some evidence that the lists were so arranged. William Castell's will was witnessed by nos 78, 79 and 84 (in List 2) and one would expect neighbours to be witnesses to a will, but unfortunately Castell is no 37, somewhat removed from his group of witnesses (see Notes). Nos 107 and 108 in List 1 held adjacent properties in Paris Garden, but it is difficult to see any precise pattern elsewhere although there are general patterns to their distribution (see Notes). For example, most but not all the entries in List 1 between nos 9 and 28 that can be located are in the Clink manor and the ones after 105 are in Paris Garden; likewise, all the entries after no 160 in List 2 that can be located are in the Clink Liberty while those between nos 12 and 75 are certainly or probably in the Great Liberty (so they would be on the east side of Borough High Street), which does not leave much room for those in Paris Garden or the King's Liberty (on the west side of Borough High Street).

FURTHER WORK

It may be possible to identify the topographical arrangement further, especially in Paris Garden, and this might give some indication of the distribution of wealth in St Margaret's parish. This work is intended to become part of a biographical database for the people of medieval Southwark and will be added to as other documents are read (for example the King's Bench Plea Rolls after 1494).
