AIR-VIEWS OF VILLAGES IN CO. DURHAM

A. Heighington, a multiple-row village, in 1183 the centre of 'Heighingtonshire' (p. 38, and cf. FIG. 20)

B. Middlestone, a regular two-row village, showing traces of former tofts beneath surviving units. The ground slopes from top (N.) to bottom (S.) of photograph and the virtual absence of older boundaries on the S. side is probably due to soil-drift (p. 46 f., and cf. FIG. 21)

AIR-VIEWS OF THREE REGULAR TWO-ROW VILLAGES IN CO. DURHAM

A. Carlton, a village with enclosed green and closed building-lines (pp. 48 ff., and cf. FIG. 21)
B. Middridge; both this village and Carlton lay on the estates of the bishop of Durham (p. 52).
C. Cowpen Bewley, a village on lands of Durham Cathedral priory; the more open plan reflects the early 16th-century reorganizations on this estate (p. 53).
