Lists of churchwardens of St Peter's and St Mary's

Warwick Rodwell

Books containing seventeenth- and eighteenth-century churchwardens' accounts for both St Peter's and St Mary's were extant in the late nineteenth century, but were subsequently lost. These were not only a valuable record of works undertaken and expenses incurred, but also supplied the names of the churchwardens of the time. It was usual for one to change each year and the other to continue for a second term, thus ensuring continuity; on the other hand, some were repeatedly re-elected. Partial transcripts of information contained in the lost accounts were made by Hesleden, Ball and Moor, and some excerpts from these were printed in the Barton Parish Magazine (Moor 1893).

Hesleden compiled a near-complete list of St Peter's churchwardens for the period 1650–1772, using an account book which is now lost.¹¹¹ It was seen by Ball, but had disappeared before 1889.¹¹² The extant accounts for St Peter's, cover the period 1847–1902.¹¹³ A list of churchwardens from 1819 was compiled in 1915 from surviving sources.¹¹⁴

The churchwardens' accounts book for St Mary's covering the years 1640–1760 was also seen by Hesleden and Ball,¹¹⁵ but that too had been lost sometime before 1889. It was recovered by Moor in 1893, but was once again missing by 1912.¹¹⁶ Unfortunately, the names of the churchwardens were not abstracted, and are thus unknown. Additionally, Moor found another source giving churchwardens' names back to the beginning of the seventeenth century.¹¹⁷ Accounts now survive only from 1855–1902, but a list of churchwardens compiled in 1915 extends back to 1819.¹¹⁸ There is a combined book of accounts for St Peter's and St Mary's, covering the period 1902–20.¹¹⁹

The lists of churchwardens have not previously been consolidated and published. Here, they have been assembled from the foregoing sources, but their accuracy cannot be vouched for; and there are gaps. Variant spellings and contractions have been retained. Numerous mentions of churchwardens appear en passant in legal and other documents, and these provide not only cross-checks with the lists but also additional names. Extensive research amongst these sources awaits the undertaking.

111. LA: F.L. Misc. 10/2/25. Printed by Moor in BPM, xii.1892.

112. Ball (1856, 2, 6) refers to the accounts as covering the years 1650–1750. Moor did not see them.

113. LA: Barton Par. 7/1. Also includes St Mary's accounts after 1897.

114. Compiled by William Wilson, churchwarden, and printed in BPM, vii.1915.

115. Ball (1856, 2, 6) gives the dates as 1640–1725. Copies of a few excerpts have survived (LA: F.L. Misc. 10/2/19).

116. BPM, x.1892; vi.1893; x.1912.

117. It would appear that he made a list of seventeenth-century churchwardens, which he passed on to W.E. Varah (mentioned in Varah 1948, 21). The whereabouts of this list is now unknown.

118. LA: Barton Par. 7/2. This book ends in 1897; the accounts down to 1902 are with St Peter's (loc. cit.). A list of churchwardens covering the period 1819–1916 was compiled by William Wilson and printed in BPM, viii.1915. His source for the period 1819–1854 does not appear to have survived.
