SUMMARY

On March 15th, 2017, an archaeological watching brief took place at Aden Country Park Camping and Caravan site near Mintlaw, Aberdeenshire. The work took place in response to the installation of several 'glamping pods' or fixed camping shelters, and primarily involved the excavation of a 165m long cable trench for electrical services. No archaeological finds or features were noted during the project, though several suspected Bronze Age platforms are located some 35m NW of the cable route.

1 BACKGROUND

- 1.1 The site (Illus 1) is located at the west side of Aden Country Park Camping and Caravan site on the south side of Station Road, Mintlaw. It is centred on NGR NJ 98462 48290, at 55-57m OD in the parish of Old Deer.
- 1.2 The work was commissioned by Liz Scott, Buchan Development Partnership. An application APP/2016/2681 for erection of 6 glamping pods and creation of car parking spaces was approved on 10.11.2016 with an archaeology watching brief condition (condition 1). Reason: To record items of archaeological interest. This should include, but is not limited to a watching brief during all ground disturbance.
- 1.3 All the archaeological work will be carried out in the context of Scottish Planning Policy (SPP) Planning Advice Note (PAN 2/2011) and Historic Environment Scotland's Policy Statement (HESPS) which state that archaeological remains should be regarded as part of the environment to be protected and managed.

2 ARCHAEOLOGICAL BACKGROUND

2.1 There is one Scheduled Monument within 1km of the proposed development. Old Deer Old Parish Church is 950m from the proposed development. The ruin comprises the remains of the old parish church which lie immediately E of the present parish church in the centre of Old Deer, incorporated into two contiguous walled roofless burial enclosures, separated by the medieval chancel arch. The only surviving parts of the medieval church appear to be the chancel arch itself, the truncated E end of the nave, and some parts of the N and S walls of the chancel. The nave was 6.2m wide internally and of uncertain length, the W part having been destroyed completely when the parish church was built in 1788-9. Its overall width was probably 8.05m, the same as the present burial enclosure, though it is hard to detect any medieval masonry in the external walls as the facing has been greatly altered by repairs and the insertion into it of various memorials.

The W burial enclosure, of which it now forms part, extends 6.62m E-W, with a W wall 0.6m thick containing the entrance. This enclosure was probably formed in 1892, which is the date at which William Ferguson of Kinmundy erected a memorial against the S wall in memory of his ancestors, the earliest mentioned being James Ferguson of Kinmundy, who died in 1777. Medieval features of the nave that survive in situ include a splayed rounded-arched window in the N wall, and another facing it on the S. Just to the left of the latter is a scalloped piscina, set in a recess enclosed by a trefoil arch; this was probably intended to serve a nave altar placed to the right of the chancel arch. Immediately to the left of the chancel arch is another similar piscina, though less well preserved, indicating the former existence of another nave altar in that position also. To the left of the N window is an aumbry with a segmental-arched head surmounted by a pointed arch containing a cross in circle. The chancel arch is 2.24m wide and roughly semi-circular, with a broad chamfer on both arises. On the E face of the wall between the nave and the chancel, to the left of the arch and at a level just above its springing (perhaps some 2m above the original floor level) is a blocked door, that would possibly have given access to a rood loft above the nave altars. The chancel was 4.3m wide, though the medieval walls survive only as footings at the W end and in the central part of the S wall where the wall of the E burial enclosure appears to retain the original wall-thickness. If one assumes that the form of the chancel is perpetuated more or less in that of the E burial enclosure, it would have been some 10.75m long internally. The burial enclosure itself appears to date from 1731, when James Ferguson of Pitfour erected a fine marble memorial to his wife. Anne Stuart, in the centre of its S wall. A heraldic stone is built into the E wall. A number of heraldic stones and memorials are built into the external S wall of the W burial enclosure and appear to have been brought here from elsewhere. The Old Parish Church is traditionally supposed to have been dedicated to St Drostan, though there appears to be no certain evidence of this. Nor is there any certain evidence that it occupies the site of a monastery established by St Columba and St Drostan in AD 580. The Old Parish Church and Churchyard are listed as Historic Buildings (Category B).

2.2 The site is within the Aden Estate (HER NJ94NE0077). It is the remains of a 17th-19th century designed landscape. The estate was purchased in 1758 by Alexander Russell who implemented contemporary ideas of farming 'Improvement' reorganised his tenant farms, planted woods for shelter and built a house overlooking the South Ugie Water (NJ94NE0034). Succeeding generations of the Russell family completed the transformation by enlarging the house and building the unique steading (c. 1800 NJ94NE0035). By the 1920s house and gardens were in decline, and Russell sold the estate in 1937. After a succession of owners it was purchased by Aberdeen County Council in 1974, part of which has since been developed as a country park. It contains several category C-Listed features. These include the former laundry (NJ94NE0092) situated between the mansion and stables, which may be late 18th century in date, and which has now been converted to North East Folklore Archive. The walled garden (NJ94NE0093) is dated 1766 but was probably rebuilt in the earlier to mid-19th century. It incorporates a bothy, potting shed and gardener's cottage.

- 2.3 Excavation of two stone structures in Aden Country Park was carried out from 6-19th June 2016 by a team of 36 archaeologists, Book of Deer members, students and volunteers as well as staff and nearly 300 pupils from local primary schools and Mintlaw Academy. Structure 1 is a T-shaped building, probably built on the medieval period, possibly as a tower house and possibly later used as an Episcopalian Meeting House. Nearly 20 coins of the late 18th century, copper alloy heart-shaped brooch and copper alloy book fittings are included in the finds from the later use of the building. Burnt timbers and stone were excavated from the demolition of the building which had been burnt prior to demolition. Structure 2 may have an agricultural or mixed domestic and agricultural use. There is a hearth inside the S wall surrounded by a well-laid cobbled floor and a stone-lined pit in the NE corner of the N room which may have been an exterior courtyard (Cameron 2016).
- 2.4 As part of a Book of Deer funded project, an evaluation was carried out by Murray Archaeological Services of a group of 27 circular enclosures or possible huts lie in a plantation 40m N of the former stables of Aden House between NJ 9805 4798 and NJ 9811 4819 (NJ94NE 88) (Murray and Murray 2011).
- 2.5 A trench was also dug in the park by Guard Archaeology with no significant archaeological results (Lelong 2009).
- 2.6 There are circular and linear upstanding earthworks in the wood immediately to the west of the proposed development which may date to the prehistoric period. They are going to be investigated in March and April 2017 as part of a heritage Lottery application within the park. Other possible sites to be investigated are a possible stone circle site, possible World war 1 practice trenches and the ruined Aden Mansion house (Cameron forthcoming).
- 2.7 The proposed development is adjacent to the grounds of the former Pitfour House (RCAHMS no NJ94NE 67), site of manor/ mansion house; possible site of Manor Place of Pitfour. The estate came in to the possession of the Ferguson family in the early 18thC. The original estate was enlarged by the acquisition of land at Inverugie, formerly owned by the Earl Marischal. The 'improving' Fergusons subsequently built one of the most magnificent mansions in the north-east designed by John Smith, with landscaped surrounding policies. The finished product was one of the show-pieces of Buchan. The earlier mansion house may have been an addition to the former manor or built on the site of the manor. The conservatory gallery was carried on lonic columns with a protruding studio on Corinthian columns, which was added along the entire front of the house. When the house was demolished, the studio and gallery were removed to Kinloch House, near St Fergus. Although the house was demolished in 1927-30 and the grounds have suffered much from timber felling, the lake and its surrounding buildings still have great landscape and architectural value. All buildings associated with the house are listed B because of this. To the north of the house lay gasometers, the laundry (with ice-house to the rear), stables and a riding school. To the west were the kennels and pheasantry. There were also sawmills at NJ9627 4930 with a lade leading from the west to it. To the west of the stable block, itself a U-shaped building with central tower, is the remains of a circular game larder (Aberdeenshire HER).
- Several of the buildings within the estate are listed. The Stables (NJ94NE 67.5) are listed B: John Smith, shortly after 1820. 2-storey (low 1st) U-plan, pinned rubble (formerly harled) with granite dressings, centrepiece segmental arch with 3 recessed panels over enclosed in antis and pediment with wooden Doric cupola over. Low-pitched roof (now asbestos) behind blocking course. The Game Larder (NJ94NE 67.15)

Circa 1820. Single-storey octagon, harled with granite margins, apex of broad-eaved roof platformed with louvre. Dilapidated. The Laundry (NJ94NE 67.4) is listed C Circa 1820. 2-storey 5-window pinned rubble with granite dressings, centre bay projects; broad-eaved piend roof. The Chapel (NJ94NE 67.7) is listed C 1850-1 (as English Episcopal Chapel continuing); Crude gothic, roughly built of rubble, rectangular plan with 60' battlemented W. tower, wood tracery. The NE (NJ94NE 67.1) and SE (NJ94NE 67.2) and NW (NJ94NE 67.3) bridges date to before 1820. 3 low segmental arches with cutwaters granite ashlar built with square recessed panels at the spandrels. Fluted cast-iron post and chain parapets. The Temple of Theseus Circa 1835 (?). Small Greek Doric Hexastyle temple with 34 granite- column peristyle; wood entabuature; very finely detailed. The Boathouse (NJ94NE 67.8) is now listed C Probably before 1820. Single-storey artificial rubble-built ruin with gothic arches; granite dressings; landing area for boats. The Kennels (NJ94NE 67.14) are listed B Before 1820(?). Single-storey 2-window and centre distyle Doric Portico in antis. Rubble built with granite dressings (Historic Scotland online).

2.8 On the N side of the estate is Pitfour 'homestead moat' (NJ94NE 41). Air photography (CUCAP BVI 25, flown 29 July 1975 and AAS/77/10/SL/28, flown 8 August 1977) has recorded the cropmark of a rectilinear or rectangular enclosure among indeterminate cropmarks on a gentle slope at an altitude of 75m OD (Bogdan and Bryce 1991, 26). On the E of the estate at Mains of Pitfour is a rectilinear enclosure (NJ94NE 82). Air photography (AAS/82/12/S14/13-17, flown 20 July 1982) has recorded the cropmark of a rectilinear enclosure on a gentle slope at an altitude of 65m OD.

2.9 The proposed development is in farmland on the First and Second OS maps (Illus 3, 4) and is now in a grassed area used for pitching tents.

3 THE WATCHING BRIEF

On March 15th, 2017 installation of a 165m long machine-dug cable trench was completed, measuring 50cm in depth and was approximately 10-12cm in width at the base, widening to approximately 20cm at the top. Topsoil deposits averaged 20-25cm in depth, and formed a clear horizon from the underlying subsoils. Evidence of previous disturbance was visible in areas where drain tiles had been installed during the initial construction phase of the campground. The existing gravel track towards the rear of the site was slightly expanded in width for parking. This work did not penetrate topsoil. No archaeological finds or features were noted during this watching brief, though it should be pointed out that this type of narrow cable trench does not readily favour the identification of archaeological finds or features due to the narrow profile. In addition, a number of suspected Bronze Age platforms or enclosures are readily visible some 20-35m to the NW of the campground, located immediately on the opposite side of the track/nature path. Given this close proximity, it would stand to reason that unknown archaeological deposits may yet be located within the campground.

4 CONCLUSIONS

Although no archaeological finds or features were noted within the narrow confines of the cable trench, the presence of apparent upstanding prehistoric Bronze Age features immediately to the NW of the camping area suggests that a reasonable potential exists for buried prehistoric archaeology within the camping area, in particular the area of the glamping pods. If future excavation works take place for additional glamping pods, these factors should be taken into account.
