

HERBERT JONES, F.S.A.

By the death of Mr. Herbert Jones, on 3rd October, 1916, the Institute has lost an old and valued member. Elected in 1878, Mr. Jones served for many years on the Council and took part in many of the annual meetings. He was especially helpful during the London meeting of 1893, when the Société Française d'Archéologie (of which he was a member) joined the Institute in London, after holding a congress in the county of Kent. Mr. Jones was much interested in excavation work and for numerous years worked at Silchester. He also did some little work at Wroxeter in 1894 preliminary to the visit of the Institute to the site during the Shrewsbury meeting. In 1902 he superintended the excavation of a Roman building in Greenwich Park, on which he read a paper to the Institute in June of that year. His sturdy, robust figure and genial countenance will be much missed by those who knew him.
