

Figure 16. Entrance to Boleigh Fogou, from S

Figure 17. Looking N towards the fogou entrance (marked by ranging pole), across NE corner of enclosure interior (modern path kerb in foreground)

Figure 18. Looking SW along the bank that may be the remains of the Iron Age settlement enclosure, with the ranging pole marking the NE end of the fogou. Garden wall (1) and the roof of The Cabin are visible beyond

Figure 19. Looking N towards the gateway created by garden walls (1), right, and (3), left

Figure 20. The Cabin, prior to redevelopment, from SSW

Figure 21. The Cabin, prior to redevelopment, from NNE

Figure 22. Garden wall (2), within main site, prior to redevelopment (from N)

Figure 23. Garden path (4), in front of The Cabin, prior to redevelopment (from NE)

Figure 24. The main development site from the E, after vegetation clearance and the demolition of The Cabin and W end of Garden wall (2); Garden path (5) is runs across the foreground

Figure 25. Garden path (5), looking SW towards granite outcrop

Figure 26. Garden path (4), from NW

Figure 27. Garden path (4), looking NE, from outcrop; and section through its paving, after it had been removed within the development site (from NE)

Figure 28. Natural outcrop / wall (6), from N, when initially exposed; Garden wall (1) beyond

Figure 29. Natural outcrop / wall (6), from NE, when initially exposed; Garden wall (1) and more outcropping rock beyond

Figure 30. Unexcavated NW extension of outcrop/wall (6), looking S

Figure 31. Similar 20th century garden walling further down the wooded NE valley slope, looking NW

Figure 32. The main development site from NW corner, after soil removal, showing: in foreground, natural granite & granitic subsoil (rab), mottled with root activity (eg excavated Feature 1); in middle ground, natural outcrop / wall (6); with digger removing paths (4) & (5)

Figure 33. Looking SW across naturally outcropping granite & root-disturbed rab surface towards Garden wall (1)

Figure 34. Soakaway (A), looking S; Garden wall (2) and kerbed garden path on left, and re-deposited rab path surface showing up as lighter area in the trench

Figure 35. Soakaway (A), looking N, towards the main development site (with concrete foundations) and remains of Garden wall (2)

Figure 36. 1st septic tank pit, looking N, after removal of topsoil (outcropping rock caused this pit to be relocated further down the slope)

Figure 37. Looking SW towards 2nd septic tank pit, with herring bone soakaway beyond and site of backfilled trench from 1st septic tank pit in foreground

Figure 38. Herringbone pattern soakaway for septic tank, looking W

Figure 39. Section of 2nd septic tank pit, showing turf, over soil, over gravelly, sandy periglacial head deposit (from SSW)

Figure 40. Section of herringbone soakaway trench, from SSE (turf, overlying gravelly soil, over clayey periglacial head)