THE SUSSEX ELECTION POLL-BOOK OF 1734.

By HUGH WYATT, ESQRE., LL.D. (RECORDER OF SEAFORD).

There is, in the possession of the Revd. H. Ingram, of Steyning, a moderately-sized pamphlet, of the title page of which the following is an exact copy:—

"A Poll, taken by Henry Montague, Esquire, Sheriff of the County of Sussex, at the City of Chichester, on Thursday and Friday, the ninth and tenth days of May, 1734, for the election of two Knights of the Shire, for the said County, in the present Parliament, each parish alphabetically described. Candidates:—

The Right Honorable Henry Pelham, Esquire.

James Butler, Esquire. Sir Cecil Bisshopp, Bart. John Fuller, Esquire.

London: Printed by John Cole, Stationer, near Temple Bar, Fleet-st.

N.B.—Where there is no addition to a name, the person dwelleth in the parish where the freehold lies."

This pamphlet having been placed at my disposal, it occurred to me that the Sussex gentry of the year 1871 might be interested in learning which side was taken by their fore-fathers in a hotly contested county election nearly 140 years ago. As the limits of our volume will not admit of the poll being printed in extenso, I am necessarily confined to giving extracts only from it. In the selection which I have made, I have generally taken the names of the principal landowners in each parish. I have confined myself to the notice of those XXIII.

voters who appear to have representatives living in the county at the present day; and to those who seem to have any other claims to be specially noticed.

But before I proceed to give extracts from the Poll-book itself, I may, perhaps, be permitted to say a few words on the then existing state of parties in England generally, as well as in our own county of Sussex. In the year 1734, the great champion of the House of Hanover and of the Protestant succession to the throne, Sir Robert Walpole, had been Prime Minister for 14 years; and whatever question there may be as to some of the means by which he contrived to retain the Whig Government in power, and himself at the head of it, during the lengthened space of 22 years, there can be but little doubt that, upon the whole, his rule was beneficial to the country, securing to it as he did, by his judicious policy, the blessings of a long peace during a somewhat turbulent period of European history. There had been some sharp conflicts in Parliament in the spring of the year above-named; and notably one in the Commons on March 17th, upon the proposed Repeal of the Septennial Act. "But," says Lord Stanhope, in his "History of England" (Vol. II., p. 177), "these Parliamentary struggles were the precursors of the great electoral battle. It was fought a little more than a month afterwards, with the utmost acrimony on both sides. . . . . Neither party succeeded to their wish-a majority was obtained for the Minister: but by no means so large as at the last election."

With regard to county politics, the Whig party seems to have been greatly in the ascendant at the time in question. It is possible that the residence in East Sussex of the active and energetic Duke of Newcastle—who was a strenuous supporter of Sir R. Walpole—may have, to a certain extent, contributed to this ascendancy. The Duke, in a letter to Horace Walpole, thus speaks of the election:—"We returned from Sussex very victorious; and you may imagine, not a little pleased with it, considering the violent and strong opposition we met with."

The names of the candidates in this memorable and costly contest have been already given; I will, therefore, only add a few particulars concerning them. Mr. Pelham was the younger son of Thomas, Duke of Newcastle. He served the office of Secretary at War and Paymaster of the Forces. From 1744 to 1754 he was First Lord of the Treasury. Mr. Butler was the head of a good county family residing at Warminghurst. These two were the Whig candidates. Cecil Bisshopp lived at Parham, and is now represented by his descendant, Lord Zouche. Mr. Fuller, of Rose Hill, Brightling, had been elected for Sussex in 1713; and two other members of his family have represented the County in Parliament. These two last were the champions of the Tory party. The final result of the poll was as follows:-Pelham. 2,271; Butler, 2,053; Bisshopp, 1,704; Fuller, 1,581. The number of freeholders polled was 3,817, of which Hastings contributed 166; Chichester, 129; Lewes, 104; and Brighton 204 voters. I have contributed an additional column to the Poll-book, giving the present representatives of such of the voters' families as I have been able to ascertain :-

Mr. Wyatt has told us that the electioneering influence of the Duke of Newcastle was very strong in the Eastern Division of the county; and, as Editor, I now venture, with this gentleman's permission, to add, that equally strong was the territorial influence of another Duke resident in Western Sussex; I allude to the Duke of Somerset, of Petworth House, who held the same political opinions as the ducal house of Newcastle. Both knew the way to an Englishman's heart, and pursued it. Bramstone, the Rector of Harting, and one of our West Sussex poets, in speaking of this influence in his "Art of Politics," which he wrote in imitation of Horace's "Art of Poetry," says—

"When the duke's grandson for the county stood,
His beef was fat, and his October good.
His lordship took each ploughman by the fist,
Drank to their sons, their wives and daughters kissed;
But when strong beer their free-born hearts inflames,
They sell him bargains, and they call him names.
Thus it is deem'd in English nobles wise
To stoop to no one reason but to rise."

And Turner, the Easthothly tradesman of a hundred years ago, speaking in his diary—Vol. xi. p. 199—of the quality of the contents of the Halland beer cellars in the Dukes of Newcastle's time—and by his own confession he was no mean judge—testifies in humble prose to the same fact.

"The ale," he says, "was strong at Halland House, and it flowed as freely there as it did in other old halls, in what are called the days of the 'Fine Old English gentleman." Many a bout had he of it. "I may safely assert," he says, "that when we have met in the hall upon any occasion, political or otherwise, not one of us has returned home thoroughly sober."

In the election under consideration, the Duke of Somerset espoused the cause of Mr. Butler, the West Sussex Whig candidate, and doubtless of Mr. Pelham. In a quaintly amusing diary kept by a Mr. Marchant, of Hurstpierpoint, who was at the time the Duke's land steward, and some extracts from which I hope to be able to give in a future volume—I find the following entries referring to this duke and the election:—

"Monday, at Petworth—Was sent for into my Lord Duke's rooms, when he said to me, 'Have you canvassed for Mr. Butler?" I replied, 'No, my Lord Duke.' Then he said, 'You must do so. You and Mr. Ede go round the town tomorrow morning and canvass for him.'"

"Tuesday—We went to every freeholder in Petworth and asked for his vote for Mr. Butler, and all promised but one."

"Wednesday—Went with his Grace to North Chapel, on his way to London. He still expressed himself anxious about the result of the election, as far as Mr. Butler was concerned."

"Thursday and Friday—At Chichester, at the election, when, much to his Grace's satisfaction, Mr. Pelham and Mr. Butler were successful."

One of David Garrick's most beautiful odes was written by him on the occasion of the death of Mr. Pelham, a few years after this election. He was decidedly the most popular man of his day. The Ode is headed, "An honest man's the noblest work of God." It speaks of him in terms of the highest commendation. Addressing him in the two last stanzas, the author says:—

"To hear no lawless passions call,
To serve the king, yet feel for all,
Such was thy glorious plan!
Wisdom with generous love took part,
Together work thy head and heart—
The minister and man,

Unite ye kindred sons of earth, Strangle bold faction in its birth; Be Britain's weal your view! For this great end let all combine, Let virtue link each fair design, And Pelham live in you."
