

JOURNAL OF THE CHESTER ARCHAEOLOGICAL SOCIETY

VOLUME 68

FOR 1985

Printed for the Society by
Cheshire Typesetters (The Bemrose Press)

1986

With Volume 68, the Society's Journal returns to its traditional form, a volume consisting of articles on subjects which represent most of the Society's interests: archaeology, architecture and local history. It is invidious to draw attention to a specific contribution, but it is particularly pleasing to include in Volume 68 the result of important work largely inspired by the Society's one day conference on the Rows of Chester, held in 1984.

Once again the Honorary Editor is grateful to the members of the Journal Sub Committee (Dr. B.E. Harris and Mr. T.J. Strickland) for their assistance; to all the other members of the Society who have given encouragement, help and support; and to the contributors without whom the Journal could not maintain the high standard of article which it seeks to attract. Finally, she would like to draw the membership's attention to the acknowledgements at the head of some of the articles: in view of the rising cost of printing, without such help, the Society which has published a Journal since 1850, probably could not publish at all.

Annette M. Kennett
Honorary Editor
