

WWII RAF STRUCTURE

July 29, 2011 GGAT Archaeological Prospection, Day of Archaeology, Day of Archaeology 2011, Post Medieval, Survey Cardiff, Chepstow, Llandow, Major, Pengam Moor, St Athans, St Brides, Wales

Have just returned from my photographic survey of the remains of a building once associated with RAF St Brides (also known as No 6 SLG). The airfield was originally a grass strip and also used as an emergency landing strip for RAF Llandow, which lies further to the northeast.

This survey will be included in a Cadw funded project that I'll be undertaking later in the year looking at all the major WWII airfields in Southeast Wales. These been: Fairwood, Stormy Down, St Brides, Llandow, St Athans, Cardiff, Pengam Moor, and Chepstow.
