

A BUSY FRIDAY IN SUFFOLK

July 31, 2011 SarahP Commercial Archaeology, Day of Archaeology, Day of Archaeology 2011, Digital Archaeology, Education Academia, Anthropology, Archaeological Officer, Archaeology, Community Archaeology, Cultural heritage, education, Museology, Public archaeology, the Cambridge Folk Festival

My role is that of Archaeological Officer, which basically means I do anything and everything to do with curatorial archaeology, including planning and countryside advice or working with our Historic Environment Record, and usually a mixture of these at any one time, and today has been no exception!

However, it's been a really productive and rewarding day, finalising some of the details of our forthcoming HLF/IfA workplace learning bursary, which is a great scheme that provides on the job training opportunities for people wishing to develop their careers in archaeology. Sadly this is the last of the round of these particular bursaries, but a similar scheme is currently running for community archaeology.

Now off to enjoy the Cambridge Folk Festival.
