The British Museum International training Programme (ITP), is a six week course arranged with several UK museums, in museology, art galleries. for experts, archaeologist and all students around the world.

Most Participants come from different parts of the world From :Afghanistan, Brazil China , Egypt, Ghana, India ,Iran , Iraq, Kenya , Mexico, Mozambique, Nigeria, Palestine , South Africa ,Sudan, Turkey, UAE and Uganda.

However, during the ICTP 2009, a facebook group (ICTP) has been launched to keep communication between ICTP participants, BM staff, and colleagues from other participant Museums. The group gives its members the chance to share their news through posting on group wall, and uploading their photos on the group. The ICTP facebook group has an international environment, with its 84 members from more than 16 countries, sharing different cultures and languages, but all has same interests in Museum Studies, Archaeology, and history...etc. Moreover, the group celebrated all kinds of events social and professional.

The group has been developed well over the past months, and it starts to become an excellent communication link between participants and a gathering point to all members. It also started a self introduction of itself towards further participants. For the first time, the group had sent welcoming PowerPoint slides before the beginning of the programme to both ICTP participants of 2010, and 2011 and plan to send it Annually .

The group also developed and now has an official e-mail: BMITP@groups.facebook.com where you can e-mail the group, and all of your comments will be automatically posted on the group wall.

We will be very happy, to see you on our group, to participate and share with us your experience in Archaeology, Museology, Galleries, and any related subject. : This is our link on facebook

Hi everyone! My friend from the British Museum is involved in organizing Day of Archaeology next week. The aim is to get archaeologists, and people who have ever been archaeologists (even if you do something else now) or have ever studied archaeology or worked with archaeological objects to contribute to a website and tell the world and the rest of the archaeological community what they are doing on the 29th July 2011.

Please please if you have the time, have a look on <http://www.dayofarchaeology.com/> and contribute! They are especially looking for people who don't live in the UK, so everyone who is a member of the British International Curatorial Training Programme would be perfect for this!

I hope everyone is doing well, and that many of you decide to contribute your stories to the project.

Thank you!!

Have you ever wondered what archaeologists really get up to? Is it all just digging or is there a lot more to it? 29th July 2011 is the Day of Archaeology. Find out more...
