

#ARCHIVELOTTERY – PART 5: PAPER RECORDS

July 11, 2014 Adam Corsini Curation, Day of Archaeology 2014, Education, Finds, Historical Archaeology, Museum Archaeology #ArchiveLottery, archaeological archive, archaeological records, Archive store, illustrations

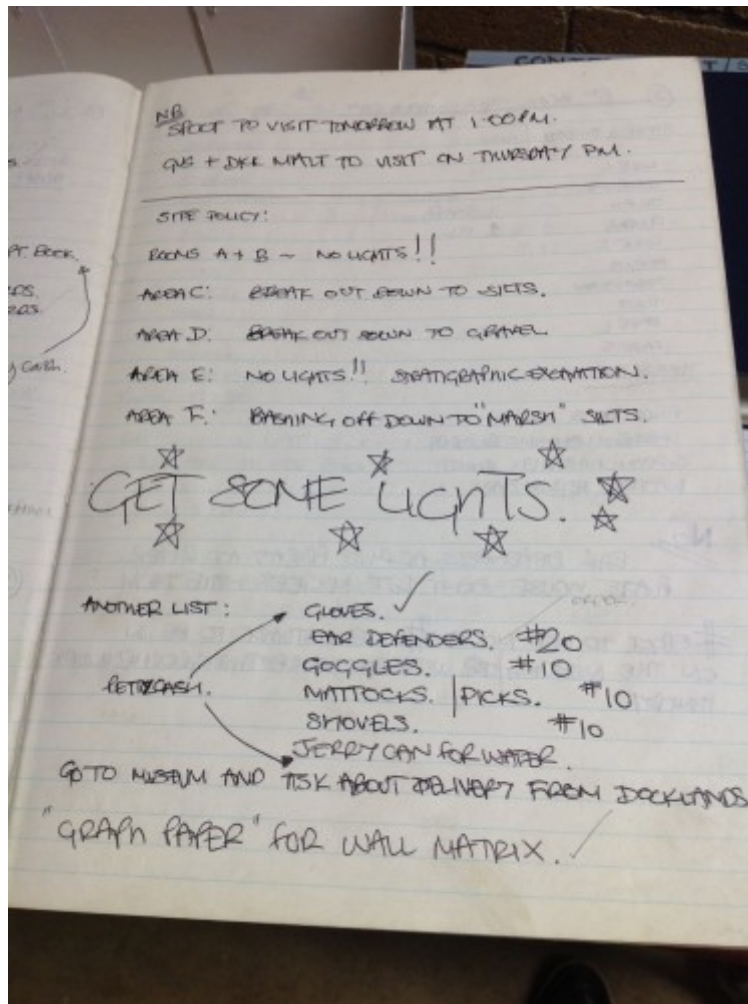

What will the records have in store for us? Behold:

Some lovely timber drawings from Trig Lane for @orangeporng

Timber drawings from Trig Lane

“Get Some Lights!!!” a shopping list of sorts from Riverplate House for @ArtiCheck

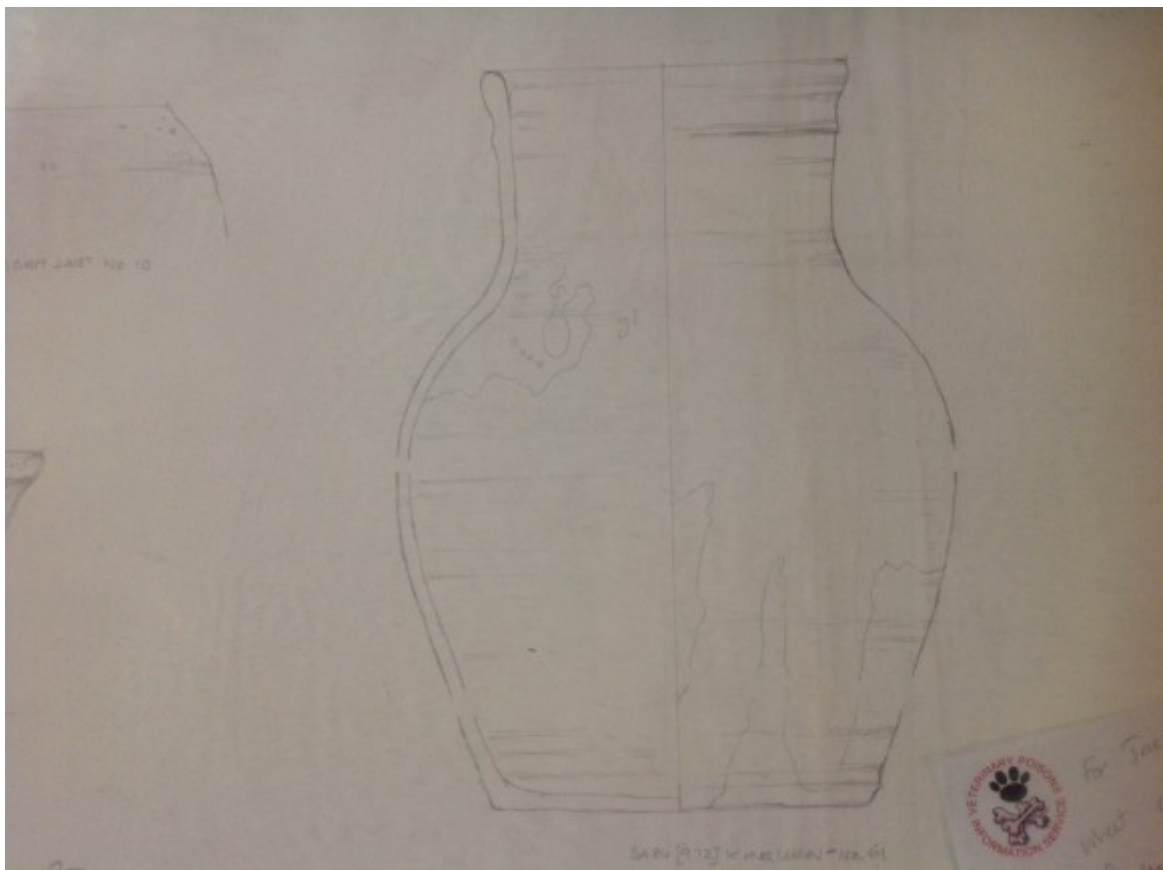

Get Some Lights!!!

A newspaper article regarding the dig at South Grove for @WebArchivist

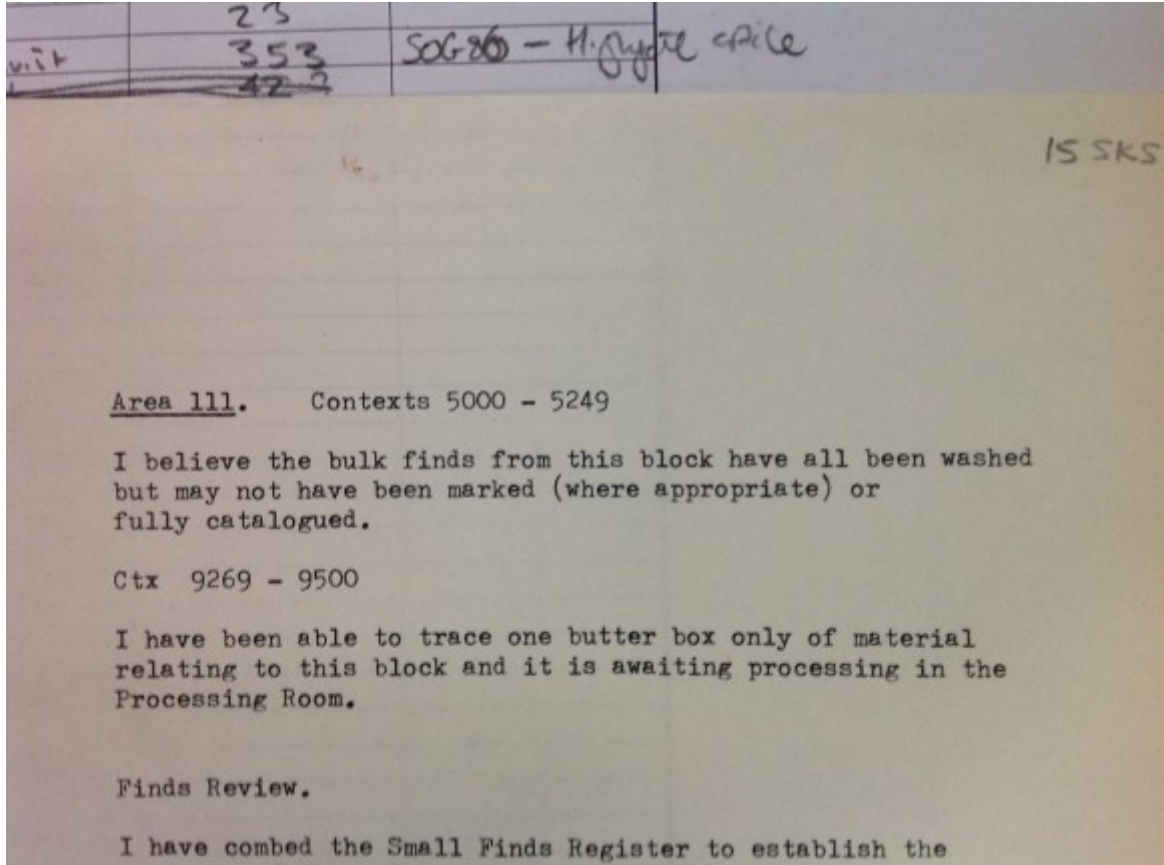

Ham and High at it's best

An illustrated Pot from Bermondsey Abbey for @mattpaheenan

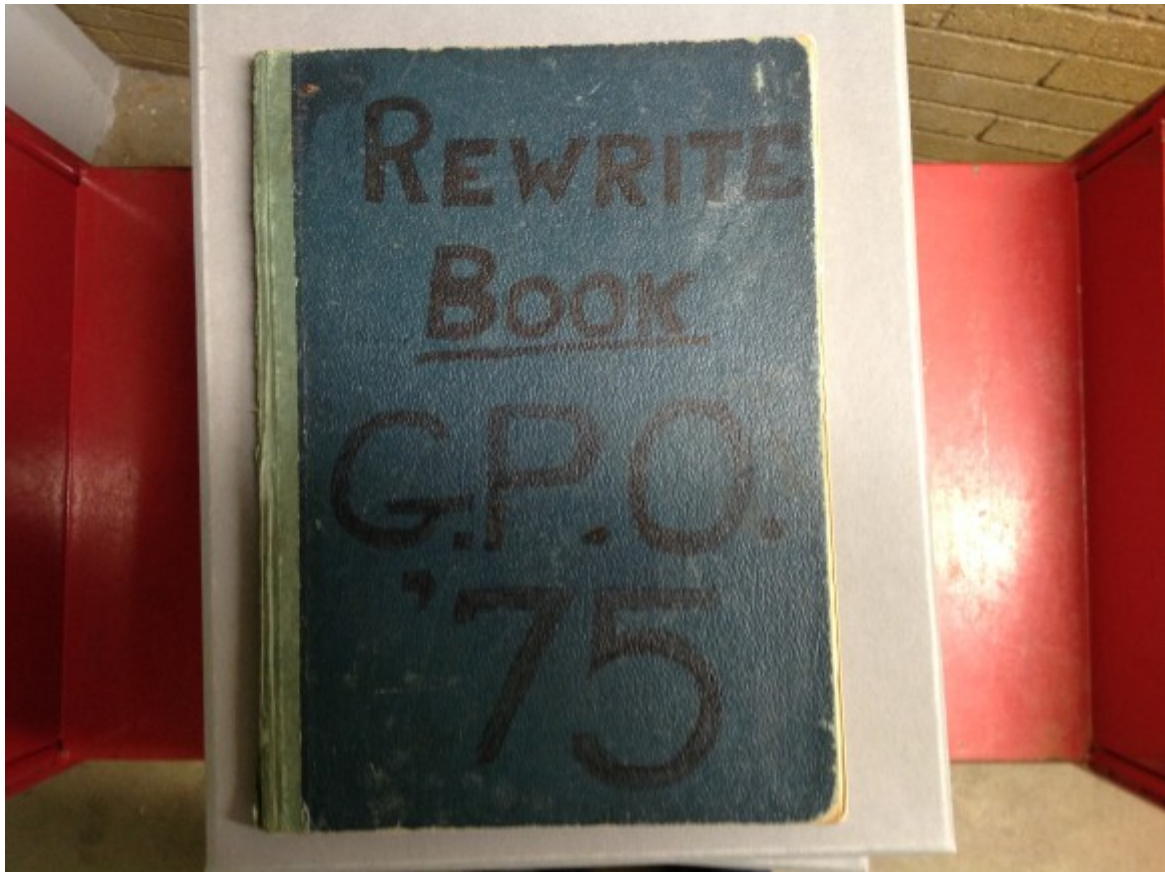

nice pot

And some bad news for area III from Southwark Street for @TheShanTiger

Who washed all the finds!

And last but not least, for one of @dayofarch's founders, the lovely @Iornarichardson gets a Rewrite book from Newgate Street

Try again

A massive thanks to everyone who offered a number today and joined in with our #ArchiveLottery. And a massive thanks to our @museumoflondon volunteer @tinctureofmuse for helping to gather all your #ArchiveLottery results!

Have a great #DayOfArch and hope to see you on a visit to the Archive store soon 😊