

A DAY WITH MACEDONIAN ARCHAEOLOGY – ARCHAEOLOGICAL SITE STYBERA, R. MACEDONIA (PHOTO)

July 14, 2014 Archaeologica Archaeologica Day of Archaeology 2014, Excavation Ancient history, Bouleuterion, Culture, Dusko Temelkoski, Horus, Macedonia, Museum Prilep, Prilep, religion, Stybera, The sanctuary

Archaeological site Bedem (Stybera), near the village Cepigovo, Prilep, Macedonia. Excavations at the ancient city of Stybera that existed from 3rd century BC to 4th century AD. In previous research campaigns we have discovered a temple dedicated to the protector of the city, the goddess Tihē and a gymnasium complex. In this year excavations we discovered four objects : the city altar, a metallurgy workshop, a sanctuary of the god with a bird face – perhaps Horus and a monumental building with walls decorated in luxury stucco technique and a lower zone colored in red – maybe the Bouleuterion of the city Stybera. By Dusko Temelkoski, project manager, NI Institute and Museum Prilep

Bouleuterion

The city altar (I – II century AD)

The metallurgy workshop (I – II century AD)

The sanctuary of the god with a bird face – perhaps Horus (II – III century AD)