

DIGGING DIARIES – SKULLS, SHAMANS AND SACRIFICE IN STONE AGE BRITAIN

July 24, 2015 Denis Minihan Archaeological Prospection, Commercial Archaeology, Community Archaeology, Digital Archaeology, Environmental Archaeology, Excavation, Explore Posts, Historical Archaeology, Landscape Archaeology, Museum Archaeology, Periods, Prehistory, Public Archaeology 2015, Britain, community, Death, Deer, Dig, England, headdress, Ice age, Mesolithic, religion, ritual, sacrifice, settlement, shamans, skulls, Star Carr, Video, York University, Yorkshire, YouTube

Hello all archaeology fans from the Digging Diaries Youtube channel!

Here's a great video covering the amazing Mesolithic dig at Star Carr, North Yorkshire.

Nicky Milner and her digging team from York University are embarking on their final ever excavation on site to unlock the secrets of this mysterious landscape.

Subscribe to our channel and follow us on Twitter (@DiggingDiaries) to keep up to date with all the new exciting digs and dives happening all over Britain this summer.

Happy Digging from all the team!