

PUNK ARCHAEOLOGY: THE ALBUM

July 24, 2015 Andrew Reinhard Archaeological Media, Experimental Archaeology, Explore Posts, Industrial Punk

Punk Archaeology: The Album

As I wait to board my flight to Detroit to participate in the Maker Faire this weekend at the Henry Ford Museum (where I'll be talking to the public about archaeology), I'm listening to the Punk Archaeology album from 2013: 17 somewhat NSFW tracks clocking in at 43 minutes. Ditties include "Do the Archaeologist", "Archaeologists Teaching Languages", "Soiled", "Austerity", "American Looters", and more. Put this in your ear when you're angry about funding cuts, academia, funding cuts, and academia. Or play it loud in the excavation house.

Listen/download for free here to add an edge to your Day of Archaeology.

Andrew Reinhard