

SETTING UP FOR THE THIRD BASING HOUSE FIELD SEASON

July 24, 2015 Hampshire Cultural Trust Bronze Age, Community Archaeology, Early Medieval, Excavation, Explore Posts, Iron Age, Medieval, Post Medieval, Public Archaeology, Roman, Romano-British, Survey Archaeology, Basing House, digging, equipment, Excavation, hampshire-cultural-trust, old-basing, Rain, season, shed, southampton, survey, University of Southampton

Today I'm working at Hampshire Cultural Trust with Dave Allen. I'm lucky because my visit times with the regular weekly volunteer day at the Archaeology Stores, managed by the Curator of Archaeology, David Allen.

To find out more about the work of David and the team, visit their excellent blog, which has a new post every Monday.

Hampshire Archaeology blog: <https://hampshirearchaeology.wordpress.com/>

— Nicole Beale

---

I've driven down to the University of Southampton to help pack the van full of equipment. This is because we're off to run the Basing House excavation field season on Monday. Very excited! It's chucking in down with rain so we've been trying to get all of the kit packed up quickly so that we can dry off. The dig is run by the University of Southampton, the University of York and Hampshire Cultural Trust.

You can read more about this year's field season on our blog: <http://basinghouseproject.org/>

Dom, Chris and the Green Shed

NICOLE BEALE