SIG D' PERCY SENIOR'

Styled 'seigneur de Alnewyk.'

¹³⁷ She was the daughter of Ralph Neville, the first earl of Westmoreland, and was the widow of Richard, lord Despencer, when she married Henry Percy, the second earl of Northumberland; she died in 1463 (O.B. 648, Fonblanque's Annals of the House of Percy). For the crescent badge and motto see A.A., 2nd ser., iv, 179).

¹³⁸ He was the second lord Percy of Alnwick, son of Henry, the first lord and his wife Eleanor, daughter of John fitz Alan, styled earl of Arundel. He succeeded his father in 1315, died 1353, and was buried at Alnwick Abbey (Annals of the House of Percy; A.A., 2nd ser., iv, 171). The blason of the shield is gold a lion rampant azure. A shield first borne by his father. It is blasoned in the roll of the battle of Falkirk (1298), in the poem of the siege of Caerlaverock (1300), and appears on the seal and counterseal of Henry Percy attached to the baron's letter to the pope (1301) (The Ancestor, vi, 196). This seal is very similar in style and design to that of his brother-in-law and feudal lord, Richard, earl of Arundel (ibid, vi, 194). It seems probable that he assumed these arms in place of the ancient Percy arms of the indented fess on his marriage with Eleanor fitz Alan, and that they are therefore derived feudally from the Arundel lion; which itself comes from the D'Albinis, earls of Arundel, who possibly used it in allusion to their descent from Adeliza, queen of Henry I. Its adoption by Henry Percy might still therefore allude to his descent from Josceline of Louvain and the dukes of Brabant, whose shield, in armorial times, was sable a lion rampant gold. The lion shield is carved for him on the octagon towers at Alnwick and on the Neville tomb in Durham abbey church. He still used the indented fess, a counter-seal of 1317 engraved in Annals of the House of Percy (seals no. 12) bearing these ancient arms, with two lions as supporters and legend SIGILL . . . CRETT.

¹³⁹ This charter is printed R.N.D., app. 143, no. 793. This is another seal of the second lord Percy of Alnwick. The mantling shews their ancient arms

1962. PERCY,¹⁴⁰ HENRY de 1-1 Spec. 7; A.D. 1363.
 Round, 1½", armorial, a lion rampant and a label of three points. The shield is held by a lion's paw issuing out of clouds (Durham Seals 19):
 s : h̄enrici : de : p̄ n : :

Styled Henry de Percy 'le filz.'

1963. PERCY, HENRY¹⁴¹ de 4-1 Ebor. 44, 46, 53; A.D. 1388-1400; 1-1 Spec. 54, 57; A.D. 1400.

Round, 1¾", a man in armour with bare head, standing on a lion, holds in his right hand a spear with pennon upon which is a crescent, his left hand rests upon a shield of arms in front of him, charged quarterly, i and iv a lion rampant, ii and iii three lucies (Durham Seals 19):

s · h̄enrici de : perci · comitis · northūmbrie · et · dni · de cokirmouth ·

Styled earl of Northumberland and lord of Cockermonth.

1964. PERCY, HENRY de¹⁴² 1-1 Spec. 49; A.D. 1435; 3-1 Reg. 11; A.D. 1445; 4-3 Sac. 17^b; A.D. 1416; Misc. 476; A.D. 1452.

Round, 2½", armorial, shield of arms couchée, bearing quarterly, i and iv a lion rampant, ii and iii three lucies, the shield is surmounted by a helmet, with mantling, upon which, on a cap of maintenance, stands the lion crest. The helmet is supported by two lions, one on either side (Durham Seals 19):

✠ sigillbm : + : h̄enrici : + : Percy : + : comitis : northūmb :
 i : dni : + : h̄onoris : + : de : + : cokirmouth of the indented fess. This is the first appearance of the Percy crest of the standing lion.

¹⁴⁰ He succeeded as fourth lord Percy of Alnwick, 1368, was created earl of Northumberland, 1377, died 1407; and was buried in York minster (O.B., ii, 645, Historic Peerage, 379). This seal is the one used by him in the lifetime of his father. His shield is carved over the gateways at Lumley and Cockermonth castles. This charter is printed R.N.D., app. 123, no. 701.

¹⁴¹ The seal of Henry the fourth lord Percy of Alnwick after his creation as earl of Northumberland, and after his marriage with Maud, the heiress of the Lucys, lords of Cockermonth in 1384. The shield of arms bears Percy (modern) quartering Lucy. The settlement by which it was made obligatory for the earl's descendants to quarter the arms of Lucy is given A.A., 2nd ser., iv, 174. He himself would quarter the shield as lord of Cockermonth in right of his wife. This shield is blasoned for him in the roll of Richard ii. This seal is engraved S.D. Seals VIII, no. 1. See also R.N.D., app. 142, no. 792.

¹⁴² He succeeded as second earl of Northumberland, 1414; was killed at the battle of St. Albans, and buried in the abbey church there in 1455. This 1965. PERCY, HENRY de¹⁴³ Misc. 5114; A.D. 1446.

 Round, 2½", very imperfect, a lion, seated, holds by his right paw a banner of arms blasoned quarterly Percy and Lucy and a label of three points (Durham Seals 19) :
 S
 Styled knight, eldest son of Henry, earl of Northumberland. The seal is named, that of our office of warden of the East Marches.
1966. PERCY, HENRY de¹⁴⁴ Loc. xxv, 155, 160, 164, 165, 165*.
 Round signet, ¾", a lion seated, with crescent round his neck, above is the legend Ʒ: eſpoyr (Durham Seals 19) :
 Styled earl of Northumberland and lord of the honour of Cockermonth.
1967. PERCY, HENRY de Loc. xxv, 147.
 Signet, very imperfect, a sexfoil.
1968. PERCY, HENRY de¹⁴⁵ 1-1 Sacr. 8; A.D. 1461.

 Styled earl of Northumberland and warden of the East Marches.
- 1968A. PERCY, HENRY de¹⁴⁶ [G] A.D. 1482.
 Round, very imperfect, armorial, apparently quarterly Percy and Lucy, with helmet and lion crest and two lions as supporters.
 Legend destroyed.
 Secretum, round, ¾", a lion seated with his tail twisted over his back, around him perance (Durham Seals 19).
 The deed bears the earl's signature (Durham Seals 19).

is the first Percy seal upon which supporters appear, though the two lions at either side of his father, Hotspur's, seal (A.A., 2nd ser., iv, 183) approach that style. It will be noted that here they support the helmet and not the shield. The absence of any crest wreath is also to be noted. This seal is engraved S.D., seals, viii, no. 2. See also A.A., 2nd ser., iv, 184. His signet is no. 1966 in this catalogue. See also R.N.D., app. 143, nos. 795-798.

¹⁴³ Afterwards third earl of Northumberland. This seal is used in the lifetime of his father and is his official seal as lord warden of the East Marches. It is engraved S.D., seals, viii, no. 11.

¹⁴⁴ The signet of Henry, second earl of Northumberland (note 142). It is similar in style to his wife's signet, no. 1959.

¹⁴⁵ The signet of Henry, third earl of Northumberland, as warden of the Marches. It is similar to the lion, on the gate tower at Warkworth castle, which bears a crescent round its neck inscribed 'Esperance.' This charter is printed R.N.D., v, note.

¹⁴⁶ The seal and counterseal of Henry, fourth earl of Northumberland, 1470-1489.

1969. PERCY, HENRY de¹⁴⁷ Loc. xxv, 151; A.D. 1515.

 shield of arms three birds (Durham Seals 28) :
 LE SELE DE LELE
 Styled son of John Person of Fery.

¹⁴⁷ Henry, fifth earl of Northumberland (1489-1527). The end of this letter to the prior of Durham is quoted A.A., 2nd ser., iv, 201, and a facsimile given ibid., plate facing p. 200. The earl's badge of a locket appears between each letter of the legend on the seal.

¹⁴⁸ The seal of Henry, eighth earl of Northumberland (1572-1585). It is not an armorial seal and is very indistinct.

¹⁴⁹ Same man as no. 1960.

¹⁵⁰ William, lord Percy, who died 1245. The seal shews apparently only three indents, but it may be that the first one on either side of the shield is dimidiated to get five in; it is engraved S.D., seals, vii, no. 3. See also A.A., 3rd ser., iii, 233.
