

NOTES ON UXBRIDGE AND ITS FORMER INHABITANTS.

BY WILLIAM DURRANT COOPER, F.S.A.

[Read at the Meeting at Uxbridge, 23d. August, 1861.]

IN giving some notes of the property and persons who were connected with Uxbridge in days long gone by, it will not be necessary for me to go over much of the ground which has been trodden by Newcourt, Lysons, or Riches.* I shall therefore make one short mention of the manor, and then proceed with some unpublished extracts from the public records, which refer to other properties and other persons.

After the death of William de Longespée, Earl of Salisbury, in 1311, his eldest daughter and coheiress Margaret became possessed of Colham, and of Uxbridge as a member of it. By an entry in the Placita de Quo Warranto we are able to fix the right day for the oldest fair, which was of longer duration than is generally supposed. In the year 1294 Henry de Lacy†, Earl of Lincoln, and Margaret his wife were summoned to show why they claimed view of frankpledge, and assize of bread and corn broken in bulk, market, fair, and free warren, &c. in Woxeburgg, Coleham, and Eggeswere; and they said that they claimed a market every Thursday in their manor of Coleham, at Uxbridge, which was a member of Coleham, and a fair for three days, during the vigil, the day, and the morrow of St. Margaret (19th, 20th, and 21st July), with all that belonged to a market and fair, and assize of bread and corn, free warren, &c. in their lordship there, and that they belonged to the ancestors of the said Margaret.

Leland says that the fair was at Michaelmas, but the chapel is dedicated to St. Margaret, and the fair was, as was customary, held on the feast of the patron saint.

The Earl and Countess had an only child, Alice, who married Thomas Earl of Lancaster, beheaded in 1322, and she afterwards married Ebulo Le Strange. This marriage being without the King's licence, the estates in capite were forfeited, but were regranted shortly after.

* The History of Uxbridge, by George Redford, A.M. and Thomas Hurry Riches, was published in 1818. 8vo.

† Placita de Quo Warranto, p. 476.

Some doubt exists as to the early designation of the town. The early title temp. Hen. II. in Basset's grant was Wxbruge. In 1315 it is called the vill of Woxbrigg, and in the extent of 1328 (2 Edw. III.) it is separated from Colham and called a borough. In the extent of 1335 it is called the manor of Colham with the hamlet of Woxebrugge, part of the honor of Wallingford, holden of the Earldom of Cornwall. In 1354 Nicholas Cantelupe died seised of Woxbruge, and on the inquisition for Roger L'Estrange of Knockyng and Alicia his wife, there were two fairs and two markets belonging to the manor; whilst on the death of their son John and Matilda his wife, widow of Latimer, in 1397 (21 Rich. II.), the place is for the first time called Woxebrugge, alias Uxbridge.

Appertaining to the honor of Wallingford there were rights in Uxbridge over felons and their goods; and the lords of the honor appointed the bailiff, Walter le Usher holding that office in 1315* (9th Edw. II.). The honor was by an Act (32 Hen. VIII. c. 2) separated from the Duchy of Cornwall and united with the manor of Newelme, and henceforward called the Honor of Newelme.

It is not necessary here to trace the descent of the manors to the Stanleys, or thence till the separation of the manors and the purchase of Uxbridge by trustees for the town, and I will therefore proceed to refer to other owners of property in the town.

In the reign of Edward III. we have several notices of owners. In 1350 † we have a release from John son of Adam de Thorne, of Woxebrigge, to Geoffry Pede and Isabella his wife, mother of the said John, of all his claim to lands in Woxebrigge, Colham, &c.

In 1354 Augustine Whalley, who was a man of note in his time, being collector of the customs of wool, &c. between Gravesend and London, and Matilda his wife, held four messuages in Woxebrigge. ‡

In 1360 Henry Burdeaux released to John Brokhampton and another all claims to the lands, &c. late of John Burdeaux, citizen and fishmonger, in Colham, Woxbrige, and another place. ||

In 1363 we find directions for the repair of the roads from Woxbridge to Acton, and from Acton to London.*

And we have an early notice of the land held here by the provost and canons of the free chapel of St. George's, Windsor, for in 1369 Geoffrey de Aston held 18 acres of land for them.†

The reign of Richard II. gives us other names. In 1388 Robert Chown and Wm. Randolf released to William Pountfreyt and Peter att Hethe all the lands in Ruislip, Woxebrigge, &c. which they had of the gift of Wm. Dowleston and Catherine his wife.‡

In Henry the Fourth's time the lands of the Thornes passed to the Charltons, who long retained them; for in 1404 we find a release from Richard Prentis and John Gardener to Thos. Charleton and his heirs, of all the lands, tenements, and gardens which belonged to Adam atte Thorne and Isabella his wife in Colham and Woxebrigge.§

In the following year, Walter Mareschall, vicar of the church of Hillyngdon, and another, released to John Yalvot and Juliana his wife all the lands which lately belonged to the said John in Woxebrigge and Herefelde.||

In the year 1407 William Smith, son of John Smith of Ruislip, released to Thos. Arthington and his heirs all his interest in his lands in Woxbridge, Hillingdon,¶ &c.

In the reign of Henry the Sixth, 1453, Wm. Gawstron died seised of a messuage in Woxebrigge; and in 1459 Robert Mansfeld, esq. and Thos. Rederough, esq. demised to William Norton and Margaret his wife the manor of Southhope, and all his lands, &c. in Woxbridge.††

It was in this reign also that Sir Walter Sherrington, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, founded his chantry here, Christopher Tole being the first chaplain.‡‡

The civil war had its sad effect at Uxbridge as elsewhere. Sir Wm. Waynesford was the servant of Queen Margaret, and, having been attainted, forfeited his lands; and in 1461 Edward IV. granted to Thomas de Burgh, one of the esquires of the King's body, the manor of Drayton and Waynesforde's lands in Uxbridge.* This was the first connection of the De Burghs with the district. They soon discovered that Waynesforde had other property in Uxbridge. It was found that he held two other messuages and 16 acres and 4 acres of land in Woxbrugge; and in 1464 they also were granted to De Burgh.†

In the same reign, 1482, Sir Thomas Bryan, knt. and others demised to Hugh Brown and others a house with the curtilage in the way called "Frogmere," and other tenements in Woxbrugge.‡

Among the documents which preserve to us most accurately the names of former inhabitants, with their means, and which show the relative importance of each place in the district, are the subsidy rolls. Unluckily, those relating to the hundred of Elthorne in the time of Edward III. are wanting, but from other rolls we find that Colham and Uxbridge contributed about one-third of the whole sum raised for each subsidy for some centuries. In the subsidy of 1382 (6 Rich. II.) Colham and Woxbrugge contributed 18*l.* 14*s.* 1*d.* out of 73*l.* 9*s.* 7¾*d.*; and the same proportion was borne in the subsidy of 14th and 15th Hen. VIII. (1499) which I give in full.

These are the family names which we shall find in the earliest book of registers. A Wolman made a bequest to the town, but not one family name of this list now remains. In the subsidy of 1540 (32 Hen. VIII.) Colham and Uxbridge contributed 15*l.* 19*s.* 6*d.* out of 60*l.* 2*s.* 8*d.* levied in the entire hundred.

On the accession of Edward VI. a return was made of the chantry, and we find the particulars not only of Sherrington's chantry, but of the brotherhood of St. Mary's. It is curious that they held four inns: the Bull's Head, which was opposite the market hall; the Cross Keys; the George, still existing; and the Saracen's Head; besides the Brotherhood Hall. Uxbridge was noted

* By a lease of 18½*l.* of land in Hillingdon, dated 3rd Nov. 42 Eliz. exhibited by Mr. Wills, Roger At Lee is described as lately the occupier; it was from Wm. Shrympton of Uxbridge, yeoman, to John Butterfield of the same town, innholder.

On 9th Nov. 1550,† there was a grant to Henry Bouchier and Henry Tanner, gentlemen, of certain messuages in Uxbridge, and particularly a messuage there called Ostrige Feather.

We have also a notice of the mills for which Uxbridge was famous, for in 1552 Sir Richard Charleton ‡ died seised amongst many estates of two mills and land in Woxbrigge, and we can fix the site of his land, for on 31 March, 1553,§ there is a grant to Thomas Golding of a tenement in the tenure of John Harris between the land of John Oxston on the east and Thomas Ashby on the west, and extending from the field of Richard Charlton on the south to the King's highway towards the north, near the chapel of St. Margaret; and the grant included the "brewhouse" and the "dyehouse."

I pass over the reign of Queen Elizabeth, remarking only that on her visit to Lord Keeper Egerton at Harefield from 31st July to 3rd August, 1602, the expenses for which are printed in the Egerton Papers published by the Camden Society, she must have passed through the town.

In the reign of James I. we learn that the men of Uxbridge took as great a delight in using their political privileges as do their successors at the present day. At the election of 1614 Sir Wm. Fleetwood, the recorder, who had sat for Middlesex, stood for Bucks. The other late member, Sir Robert Wrothe, was a candidate for re-election. Chamberlain, on 17th Nov. 1614, wrote to Carleton, informing him of a concourse at Uxbridge for choosing Sir Julius Cæsar and Sir Thomas Lake knights for Middlesex, and that a servant of Sir Francis D'Arcy was committed for saying that the King had forbidden his master to stand.* Sir Robert Wrothe, knight, and another were returned; but in the next parliament, of 1620, Sir Francis D'Arcy and Sir Gilbert Gerrard sat for Middlesex.

The house, afterwards used for the Treaty-House, was the residence of the Bennets. Dame Leonora Bennet † lived here in 1623, and on 26th Sept. in that year Mr. Secretary Conway wrote to her ‡ that he would take her house near Uxbridge at its full worth if she and her husband desired to lease it.

The Bennets took part with the King, and in August, 1660, Colonel John Bennet of Uxbridge petitioned § for the bailiff's place at Westminster, stating that he had served the King from his leaving London to the surrender of Exeter, and was imprisoned at Windsor, Portsmouth, and Lambeth, and that he had also saved Charles II. at Worcester, and was in danger of question for his life by the "High Court of Justice."

* Dom. James I. vol. 76, No. 49.

† Dame Leonora Bennet was third wife and, after 1625, widow of Sir John Bennet, Knt. Judge of the Prerogative Court, and Chancellor to Anne of Denmark. Sir John's first wife was Anne, daughter of Christopher Weekes of Salisbury; and their eldest grandson John (who founded a charity at Uxbridge) was in 1682 created Baron Ossulston, whilst their second grandson Henry was created in 1664 Baron, and in 1672 Earl of, Arlington. Dame Leonora was daughter of Adrian Vierendeels, Colonel of Antwerp, on whose death she came to England, and married first Abraham, son and heir of Peter Tryon of London, merchant, and secondly Gregory Downhall, Master in Chancery. She died 5th Sept. 1638, and is buried in Uxbridge church under an elaborate monument, with a whole-length effigy of her in a reclining posture; engraved in the History of Uxbridge, where (p. 168) her epitaph will also be found.

§ Dom. Charles II. vol. 13, No. 47.

On 30th May, 1662, the parliament voted the Hearth Tax to the Crown for ever, by which every house rated above 20s. was to pay 2s.; and in the returns for this tax we have a perfect house list for the town.
