Dear Mrs. Guido,

I understand from David Clark of the Colchester and Essex Museum that you are doing a study of Roman glass beads. I have been excavating at Aksum where we have found considerable numbers of glass beads of dates ranging probably from the third to the ninth centuries A.D., most of which I believe to be of Mediterranean origin.

I am writing to ask whether you would be willing to correspond about identifications and parallels to these beads, which are being studied here.

Yours sincerely,
