RESCUE is publishing a survey of the present state of archaeological knowledge of London entitled The Future of London's Past which is now available (post-free) for £3.50 (£2.50 to RESCUE members).

We are a charitable trust that seeks to raise money to make the public aware of the rapidly accelerating destruction of our heritage and to help record the past before it is too late.

We are sure you will want to contribute to RESCUE and its work. For further details please contact Anne Goldhawk at RESCUE, 25A The Tything, Worcester.

Tomorrow maybe too late.

Secretarial Vacancy

An interesting opportunity arises for a young lady with enthusiasm and adaptability to work as secretary to a small number of London's nicest archaeological officers. The position will entail work at three or four offices in the City area as occasion demands and will require typing and, preferably, shorthand skills. Some knowledge of archaeology would be helpful but is not essential.

The salary would be according to qualifications and experience but is expected to be in the range £1,500-£2,000 p.a. for a five-day week.

Further details may be obtained from
