LAMAS

London & Middlesex Archaeological Society

promoting London's unique heritage and historic environment

With over 600 personal members, including many archaeologists, historians and conservationists, LAMAS plays a leading role in the protection and preservation of London's heritage. Through its publications, lectures and conferences the Society makes information on London's past accessible to a wide audience.

As a member of LAMAS, you receive a copy of the widely respected Transactions each year, and also three issues of the Newsletter. In addition, you have the opportunity to attend two full day conferences and enjoy a programme of lectures from October to May.

London's Historic Environment Research Strategy

The Greater London Historic Environment Research Strategy has completed its editorial and approval process and is now available.

New webpage for strategy documents and resources

The Strategy plus the earlier Resource Assessment and Research Agenda are all now available to download on a webpage hosted by CBA London. More resources, including an occasional blog on important issues, will be added over time. Go to:
<https://archaeologyinlondon.com/london-research-strategy/>

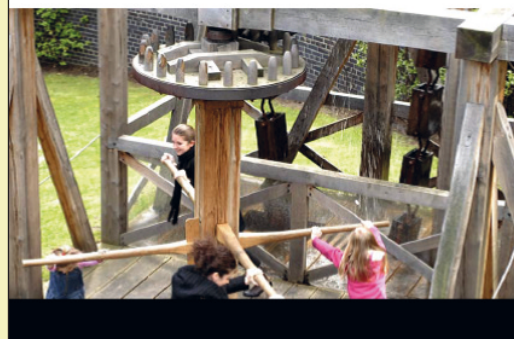

New Facebook group

A Facebook public group page is already providing a noticeboard on London research and a forum for discussion and advice. Join the group, post your thoughts or ask us a question. Go to:
<https://www.facebook.com/groups/GLHERS/>

Visit the webpage and join the group to find out what the Strategy for London is all about. The more feedback the better: participate in discussions, spread the word and help to shape the direction of research in the years to come.

The resources are there to encourage the sharing of information and ideas between individuals and groups – professional and amateur; commercial contractors and academics; archaeologists and historians; community groups, local societies and larger organisations. You can make a key contribution to the dialogue – your voice matters.
