

EDITORIAL

The editors would like to thank all the contributors to Volume 9 of Medieval Ceramics. The response to last year's plea for more articles and reviews has been heartening and we look forward to receiving a variety of contributions in the future. We would like to stress once again our interest in receiving comments and observations on papers we have published.

We have published the Bibliography this year in a slightly different format together with an index. We hope that this will be easier to use. We are very grateful to Dr Lauren Adams Gilmour for the hard work she did in compiling the Bibliography and to those who helped her to collect the material. We would like to draw attention to Dr Gilmour's request for assistance in obtaining material from certain regions.

In addition we would like to thank Glenys Boyles for help with the artwork, Anna Hart and Genevieve Wallace for translating the summaries, and Susan Parsons for doing the typing. All this help has been very much appreciated.
