

EDITORIAL

The editors would like to thank all the contributors to Volume 10 of Medieval Ceramics. We would also like to apologise to those who submitted articles which we were unable to produce this year and which have had to be held over for future volumes. Whilst we are delighted with the number and quality of the material that has been sent, financial considerations limit the size of an individual volume. For the same reason we would ask authors to try to remain within the 3000 word recommendation for article length whenever possible. There is still some room for further contributions to Volume 11; reviews, comments and discussion documents are especially welcome.

We are very grateful to Lauren Adams Gilmour for her hard work in the past in producing the Bibliography and to Katherine Barclay for her timely assistance this year. In future years the Bibliography will be collected by Katherine Barclay, and any help that members can offer her will be most welcome. Our thanks are due to all those others who participated in bringing this year's bibliography together.

We would also like to thank Helen Humphries and Glenys Boyles for their help with the artwork and Mrs Hart and Mr Bentley for translating the summaries. Many thanks are due once again to Susan Parsons for typing the text and bibliography.

Catherine Brooks and Ailsa Mainman