Summary

---

The archaeological and historic landscape survey of the Killerton Estate was commissioned by Fiona Hailstone, Killerton Ranger Team, and Martin Papworth, National Trust Archaeologist (South West Region), to bring together the results of previous fieldwork at this National Trust property, combined with an investigation of documentary material. A range of sources including historic documents, maps, aerial photographs and LiDAR data were consulted.

This volume contains imagery derived from the historic maps and aerial photographs of the estate.

1. HOW TO USE THESE VOLUMES

---

To obtain an historical overview of the area of the property and its sites:

Refer to Volume I, Section 7: Land Use History.

To review historic maps and derived information:

Refer to this report, Volume II.1: Historic Maps.

To review LiDAR maps and derived information:

Refer to Volume II.2: LiDAR.

To check an area for archaeological sensitivity, or to find a specific site:

Refer to Volume II.3, look at Archaeological Data (Historic Buildings, Sites and Monuments Record) maps. Note the reference numbers of any sites then refer to Volume III Section 9: Site Inventory.

Or Refer to Volume I, Section 3: Summary Table.

then:

Note the National Trust grading, given against each entry, as follows:

Grade	Examples
International Importance	World Heritage Sites
National Importance	Scheduled and major monuments
Regional Importance	Other important monuments
Local Importance	Sites important to a locality
Minimal Importance	A few transient features
Archaeological Potential	Site indicated by documentary sources
Unknown	Information unavailable at the time of writing

To obtain a quick assessment of the importance of a site:

Check Volume I, Section 3: Summary Table, to see if it is a Scheduled Monument (note that statutory responsibilities are outlined in Section 5).

To obtain a quick summary of management recommendations:

Refer to Volume I, Section 2.

For full details of management recommendations and site descriptions:

Refer to Volume III, Section 9: Site Inventory.

Disclaimer: Given the scope of this study, this report cannot be considered exhaustive and is intended as an outline of relevant archaeological features and standing structures known at the time of writing.

2. HISTORIC MAPS

1.1 INTRODUCTION

A number of historic estate maps for the Killerton Estate are held in record offices across the South West. A large number of these form part of the Acland Family archives in their respective record offices, a result of the Acland's ownership of estates across a number of South West counties. These estate maps do not necessarily cover the entire estate but generally relate to specific transactions or acquisitions of land, or to particular designs and schemes, not all of which were carried out. Some were not commissioned by the Acland Family but passed into their ownership with the purchase of areas of the estate. Maps produced prior to the 19th century are unlikely to have as high a level of accuracy compared to later maps and employed a variety of scales (e.g. Chains). The first historic mapping to cover the entire Killerton Estate is the 1840s Tithe survey and the first accurate and detailed maps of the entire estate are the 1880s First Edition Ordnance Survey Series. Due to the vast number of documents in the Acland family archives across a number of record offices and the lack of detailed cataloguing for many items, it is possible some estate maps for the Killerton Estate could be unknown at present in the record offices, particularly if they have been catalogued with documents relating to the Acland's other estates (e.g. Holnicote).

1.2 METHODOLOGY & SOURCES CONSULTED

All known maps and plans relating to the Killerton Estate have been researched and recorded in Volume 1: Appendix 1. Where these maps are accessible they have been photographed, georeferenced and reproduced in this volume. The majority of maps reproduced in this volume are located in the Devon Heritage Centre, with a smaller number in the Somerset Heritage Centre. Maps held at the Plymouth and West Devon Record Centre were not accessible at this time of this study due to its closure for renovation. Additional maps are held by the National Trust Archive at Wansdyke or by the Property.

1.3 PRESENTATION

Earlier and less accurate maps are presented in their original format with an inset map to indicate the approximate location of the map within the Killerton Estate (Section 3 of this volume). 19th century and later maps which are more accurate and have universal coverage have been georeferenced and presented as 11 images containing 6 x 1km tiles, with tiles based on the OS national grid (section 4 of this volume). The tiles are numbered and presented west to east, from north to south (like reading a book). Tiles are omitted where the NT does not own any land. There are five images for each set of 1km tiles:

- Ordnance Survey surveyor's draft map, surveyed c.1805
- Tithe maps, produced c.1840
- Ordnance Survey 1st edition 25" maps, surveyed c.1880
- Ordnance Survey 2nd edition 25" maps, surveyed c.1900
- 1946-1948 RAF Aerial Photographs

A final section (section 5) utilises data derived from historic maps to produce maps showing the ownership of land on the Killerton Estate at the date of the tithe survey, the occupier of each of these plots at the date of the tithe survey and a comparison of boundaries across the estate lost and gained from the 19th century to the present. Where possible a key has been provided with each map for ease of reference however for some images this is not possible so a full key for each tithe map has also been provided at the start of section 5.
