John Lewis – Scotia Archaeology

NN 5478 5607 A new cottage is to be built over the remains of a building belonging to the former township of Camghouran on the S side of Loch Rannoch. To determine whether any features predating this 19th-century settlement survived within the new house plot, on 6 February 2011 several trenches were excavated through and around the ruined building. Nothing of archaeological significance was found in any of the trenches.
